Work by Dixie Dugan

Franklin G. Burroughs • Simeon B. Chapin Art Museum, 3100 South Ocean Blvd., beside Springmaid Beach, Myrtle Beach. Through Dec. 28 - "Hurricane Hugo Recalled: The Batiks of Leo Twiggs". Artist and native South Carolinian Leo Twiggs was asked by the South Carolina Arts Commission to donate a painting to a fundraising project to help restore artists' studios destroyed by the storm. The painting he created - a work in batik, an ancient technique employing wax and dyes on fabric - launched a series of works that became, in the artist's words, "an exploration of the strength and resiliency of the human spirit in the face of adversity." Through Dec. 28 - "Dixie Dugan: A Retrospective". As a child growing up in Parsons, KS, Dugan had more than her share of difficulties with school - which would later be attributed to dyslexia. She learned to compensate using her artistic abilities. Dugan would use those talents to become one of the Grand Strand's most prolific artists, working in a range of media from watercolors and oil to pastel and collage. "Art is not my hobby," she says. "It is my life." Oct. 5 - Jan. 4, 2015 - "Shadow of the Turning: The Art of Binh Pho". A reception (fee involved for non-members) will be held on Oct. 12, from 1-3pm, featuring a talk by the artist and author Kevin Wallace. Pho's expansive approach to work in wood and glass features a highly personal iconography, with imagery that relates to Asian culture and the natural world. Hours: Tue.-Sat., 10am-4pm & Sun., 1-4pm. Contact: 843/238-2510 or at (www.myrtlebeachartmuseum.org).
