Gibbes Museum of Art in Charleston, SC, Features Works From the Martin Z. Margulies Collection

The Gibbes Museum of Art in Charleston, SC, is presenting The Bitter Years: Dorothea Lange and Walker Evans Photographs from the Martin Z. Margulies Collection, on view in Galleries 8 & 9, through Jan. 14, 2024.

Originating as a tribute to the 1962 Bitter Years photography exhibition curated by the illustrious Edward Steichen for the Museum of Modern Art, New York, the current exhibition organized by the Margulies Collection, features photographs by renowned American photographers Dorothea Lange, Walker Evans, Marion Post Wolcott, Jack Delano, and others who launched their careers as documentarians of the Great Depression.

Working for the Farm Security Administration, a branch of Roosevelt's New Deal program, these photographers were hired to capture the social landscape of the country, highlighting the challenges facing Americans between 1935 and 1944. As one photographer articulated, "the idea is to show New York to Texans and Texas to New Yorkers."

The Martin Z. Margulies Photography Collection includes over 100 vintage photographs from the Farm Security Administration, sixty-five were selected for this exhibition, which also features a series of Polaroids produced by Walker Evans in 1973 and '74 returning to themes found in the earlier works.

This exhibition was co-curated by Katherine Hinds, chief curator, and Jeanie Ambrosio, associate curator of The Margulies Collection at the Warehouse. The presentation at the Gibbes is supported by BlueCross BlueShield of South Carolina, Jane Smith Turner Foundation, and the Gibbes Women's Council.

The Gibbes Museum enhances lives through art by engaging people of every background and experience with art and artists of enduring quality, by collecting and preserving art that touches Charleston, and by providing opportunities to learn, to discover, to enjoy, and to be inspired by the creative process.

The Gibbes Museum of Art is home to the foremost collection of American art that incorporates the story of Charleston. The Museum connects the city and region's artistic past to a vibrant contemporary art scene. This is what we believe. Art is the reason.

A bustling seaport in the 1700s, Charleston was a melting pot of cultures, religions, and traditions. Powered by the labor of enslaved peoples in the rice and indigo trades, it was the 4th largest city in America in 1790 - and the wealthiest. Like Philadelphia, Boston and New York, what distinguished Charleston then - was art.

While we were home to some of America's earliest art, collectors, and artists, who made the City both muse and subject - and took our turn as one of the nation's richest cities - in money and culture - so were we also home to America's original sin, slavery - and a war that divided our nation.

In 1888, when Charleston was financially and culturally on its knees, benefactor James Gibbes left a bequest to the City to build an art museum. When the Gibbes Museum opened in 1905, the nation celebrated what Charleston has always understood: the power of art - to inspire our imagination, heal our hurt, revel in our experience, rebuild what's broken, nourish our souls, and release all that holds us back.

In Charleston, we believe art is the difference between merely existing and being truly alive. That's why we immerse ourselves in every part of it - from fine art to craft - from nurturing its creation and celebrating its multicultural presentation to inviting its interpretation and ensuring its preservation.

In the presence of art, we have the opportunity to see inside the artist's heart, mind, and soul and feel what the artist felt. That understanding and compassion make us more understanding, compassionate people, who, in turn, create a more compassionate, understanding world.

Charleston County Public Library in Charleston, SC, Features Works by Emilya Padlowski

The Charleston County Public Library system in Charleston, SC, will present Life in Art: Evolving Search and Experiment, featuring works by Emilya Padlowski, on view in the Saul Alexander Gallery, located on Calhoun Street, from Oct. 1 - 31, 2023.

Emilya Padlowski is an award-winning artist, interior designer and art historian. She has a multicultural background which manifests itself in her style and her art. Born in Poland, Padlowski spent her formative years growing up in Ukraine and Azerbaijan under the careful, ever-present eyes of the Soviet communist government; this gives her a unique knowledge of life and different cultures, and contributes depth to her art.

Trained as a Russian and French Literature and Language instructor in the Azerbaijan College of Languages, she had to adjust her life after immigrating to the United States. Her love for art brought her to the Montclair State University (NJ) where she received her Master's degrees in Fine Arts and Art History. She also studied design and painting at the International American University and the Marshutz School of Art in Aix-en-Provence, France. She has now dedicated herself to painting and making soft sculptures from recycled materials.

Padlowski's soft sculptures, both whimsical and quirky, are based on mythical stories, opera, ballet, classical music and fairytales. Her paintings have a very personal cast: the marriage of Russian, Azerbaijani and Eastern European cultures. Her art is unpredictable and uniquely attractive. Padlowski's paintings sometimes express sadness and despair, while at other times they are bursting with happiness and joyful colors. She calls her art a "symbolic

by Tom Starland, Editor and Publisher

On Our Cover This Month

On our cover this month is a work by Mary Walker, from the exhibit, Mary's Wonderland, which will be on view at the Corrigan Gallery LLC in Charleston, SC, from Oct. 4 - 31, 2023. A reception will be held on Oct. 6, from 5-8pm. The images are from the book, "Scenes from Alice in Wonderland", created by Walker, that will be available at the gallery and Buxton Books in Charleston. It is an edition of 150 which includes 27 images with an original print. Walker is one of Charleston's few fine art printmakers, something which she has been doing for a long time. She helped start the organization, Print Studio South, which eventually led to the creation of the Redux Contemporary Arts Center - which dates us both.

You can read all about the exhibit on Page 6 of this issue. Better yet, go see it.

The Sweet Smell of Fall

Well, we made it to October after the long hot Summer. It's amazing how a drop in maybe 8 to 10 degrees in the daily temps can feel so much better. That's the South for you. Folks from the Midlands, Piedmont, and Coastal areas of the Carolinas will be heading to the mountains to see if the leaves will still put on a show after such a hot Summer. Of course they might take in a few art events during their journey in search of color. If you can't find any color outside, then look inside in a gallery.

Frustration Time - Time To Blow Off Some Steam

Remember the Who, What, Where, When, and Why - the five Ws of communicating. Well, I think a lot of you have forgotten about them or never knew about them to begin with. Unfortunately this is meant for the people who won't read my commentary, much less read our publication. This is for the folks who Hit & Run on social media - mainly Facebook and those who use Constant Contact as a catch all for marketing. The people who post but are not expecting any response, other than a thumbs up or a heart.

My frustration comes from seeing a post which only promotes an exhibit and its reception date, which is only part of the story they should be telling. If an exhibition is only going to be up or on view during those couple of hours on that certain day - they are doing a good job promoting a reception or maybe not. But more work needs to be done.

When I see an interesting image of an artwork posted, the first thing I want to know is who the artist is. Then, if it was made by a living or dead artist. Next is whether the work is part of an exhibition of works by this one artist or a group of artists - where it can be seen in person, when, and how long the opportunity to see it will last. Next, do I have to pay to see it or is that free? And then way down the line I might be curious as to how big the work is, what medium it is, and how much would it cost to make it mine. Other concerns would include how far away the venue is from me, if there is parking (free or paid) available nearby, and maybe if there is somewhere nearby where I might get a bite to eat. You could also throw in the fact that an overnight stay might be involved.

Of course I'm assuming that the work is for sale or someone wants you to pay them to see it. Otherwise why is it being posted on social media or why is someone sending me an e-mail about it?

If your intent was to see something included in Carolina Arts, you're going to need more than a photo and a reception date.

fantasy", merging art with the natural world. Each painting contains a certain symbolic meaning. Her paintings, while contemporary and often non-conformist, are also influenced by classic literature and art.

While visiting South Carolina, she was charmed by the beauty of its nature and found inspiration everywhere: majestic mountains, enchanting forests, flowers and gifts from the garden often became a subject matter for her paintings. After permanently relocating to South Carolina from the NY metropolitan area, she became an actively exhibiting member of the Waccamaw Arts & Crafts Guild, the Charleston Artist Guild and the Seacoast Artist Guild.

Presently she resides in Conway, SC, with her husband and their little cat Lina.

Charleston Artist Guild in Charleston, SC, Offers Works by Valentina Messina

The Charleston Artist Guild in Charleston, SC, will present It's a Mouse's Life, an exhibition featuring a collection of paintings by Valentina Messina, on view in the Guild Gallery, from Oct. 1 - 31, 2023. A reception will be held on Oct. 6, from 5-8pm.

Valentina Messina loves painting landscapes, but also loves to find beauty in small things and small animals, even small rodents, that in this series she painted on old handwritten paper found in an antique store in Italy.

Messina was born and raised in Italy and has always loved brushes and color, but growing up had less and less time to express her creativity. One day she realized the urge to create was so strong that she started taking painting lessons.

Ten years ago, visiting Charleston as a tourist, Messina was immediately struck by its large and vibrant artistic community, but would never have imagined that one day she would be part of it. Exactly one year after her first visit to Charleston, something really unexpected happened: she won the green card lottery and moved to the USA with her family.

City of North Charleston, SC, Features Works by Members of Redux Artists Collective

The City of North Charleston, SC's Cultural Arts Department is pleased to announce that works by members of the Redux Artists Collective will be on display at Park Circle Gallery from Oct. 4 - 28, 2023. A free reception hosted by the artists will be held at the gallery on Oct. 6, from 5-7pm. The public is invited to attend.

Metamorphosis is defined as a striking alteration in physical form, structure, or substance. All art involves metamorphosis - materials take on meanings, objects merge with subjects, and forms transform into new shapes. In their group exhibition, titled Metamorphosis, the Redux Artists Collective presents a collection of works in a variety of media that reflect the kinds of transformations that lie at the heart of art making. This collection, ranging from painting and sculpture to photography and collage, will be a conscious examination of the acts of metamorphosis that underlie the artists' creative practices.

The Redux Artists Collective (RAC) is a group of contemporary artists who rent studio spaces at Redux Contemporary Art Center in downtown Charleston, SC. Each artist works in different media, including photography, painting, collage, assemblage, metalsmithing, sculpture, and mixed media art.

The mission of RAC is to foster community and build relationships within the studio artists of Redux. The group aims to bridge the gap between the Redux board, staff, and the greater Charleston community through their direct communication, marketing, and programming.

Work by Carson Carroll

Members of RAC participating in Metamorphosis include: Carson Carroll, Anna Chen, Shelby Corso, Rebecca Dew, Taylor Faulkner, Kris Hanson, R. Hopkins, Hale Horstman, Kirsten Hoving, Cindy Jesup, Nick Kawczynski, Liz Lantz, Shannon Mayo, Daisy McClellan, Elise Moore, Christine Patterson, Jenifer Padilla, Nancy Perry, Lauren Ridenour, Kate Ritchie, Lauren Sloan, Jillian Thorvaldson, and Susan Vitali.

The Park Circle Gallery is located on Jenkins Avenue in North Charleston. Admission is free and free street parking is available on Jenkins Avenue in front of the gallery, as well as on the adjacent streets and in parking lots close by.

For further information check our SC Institutional Gallery listings, call the gallery at 843/637-3565 or visit (www.northcharleston.org).

Corrigan Gallery llc in Charleston, SC, Offers Works by Mary Walker

Corrigan Gallery llc in Charleston, SC, will present Mary's Wonderland, featuring works by Mary Walker, on view from Oct. 4 - 31, 2023. A reception will be held on Oct. 6, from 5-8pm.

"This exhibit will contain many paintings of my strange characters, along with some slightly more serious themes. Included will be a show inside a suitcase so that we will have an exhibit inside of the exhibit. The suitcase will be peopled with wooden characters," Walker says about the exhibit. She continues, "It's also very exciting to introduce my 'Scenes from Alice in Wonderland' book that I've been working on for the last 6 - 8 years. Children often have magical moments of discovery and wonder which usually fade with time and distraction, but a few may linger to become an inspiration later in life," says Walker about her book release.

The book, "Scenes from Alice in Wonderland", will be available at the gallery and Buxton Books. It is an edition of 150 which includes 27 with an original print.

Walker's career has included residencies in Ireland, Massachusetts, and Venice, Italy, a solo show at the City Gallery at Waterfront Park in Charleston as result of the Griffith Lowcountry Artist's Award, and exhibits throughout South Carolina, New York, Massachusetts, and North Carolina. Some of her more notable projects are a traveling show called "The Suitcase" that featured various artists all inside an old red suitcase and an anti-war project called "The

Work by Mary Walker

Scrolls" that involved national and international artists.

Walker's work is in several collections including Morris Museum, Springfield Museum of Art, Gibbes Museum of Art, the Sol LeWitt Collection, Jules Collins Smith Museum, and in the Special Collections of the Adleston Library at the College of Charleston.

Corrigan Gallery happily represents local artists with a few exceptions of visiting and second market artists. From the edge of traditional to as "contemporary" as is feasible, the gallery presents works with thought and depth particularly in a nontraditional manner. Second market pieces are also available and works from the estates of both Elizabeth O'Neill Verner and Alfred Hutty and other notable artists.

For further information check our SC Commercial Gallery listings or visit (corrigan-gallery.com).

raised all over the US by a career Navy father and a clay artist mother, growing up surrounded by both arts and crafts & military history and design. By juxtaposing wood and metal, light and dark tones, smooth and rough textures, his furniture and woodwork is a canvas for expression. Helmkamp enjoys creating unique furniture and sculpture which ask questions, tell stories and make statements about our culture and the never-ending social avalanche we all live in. He currently lives in North Charleston, SC, where he works on commissions and makes a variety of projects and products in his home studio. He shows his work in galleries and exhibitions throughout the Southeast.

John Schumacher was born in Covington, KY, and graduated from Northern Kentucky University with a Major in Business and a Minor in Fine Arts. Many of the Civil War era houses in that area included stained glass windows in their architectural design, which he always admired, but could not afford. He decided to build a window himself, and thus began a continuing education, now lasting over 50 years.

Moving to Aiken, SC, in 1980, Schumacher pursued his professional career as a manufacturing manager, and also continued to study the masters of stained glass while refining his skills in lead, zinc and copper foil techniques. His large windows contain hundreds of individual cuts of glass. Schumacher's works have earned winning ribbons in regional competitions, encouraging him to continue his efforts.

After retirement, about 10 years ago, with children and grandchildren living in the Lowcountry, Schumacher and his wife Jane have moved once again, to Mount Pleasant, SC. He has converted his garage into a studio and spends many hours creating traditional and contemporary stained-glass pieces.

Bonnie Younginer is a fiber artist working in wool, silk and cotton. She retired from a 30-year career in Interior Design and now weaves and needle and wet felts the scenery she studies in her beautiful Lowcountry environment. Her weaving methods are plain weave and tapestry style weaving using colorful wool yarns. She draws her own patterns for the weavings referred to as "cartoons" in the weaving world.

Younginer felting uses dyed fleece, either Merino or New Zealand Corriedale wool that has been carded and pulled into long strips of wool fiber. Handmade embellishments are added for texture and interest. Wet felting calls for the wool roving to be pulled apart and laid out in a way to depict the desired pattern she has designed. The loose fibers are placed on bubble wrap, covered with a nylon mesh and a warm water soap solution is spread over the wool design, the wet fiber is rolled up onto a tube and rolled back and forth until the fibers entangle and form a piece of felt "cloth."

Before drying, the "cloth" is hand manipulated into the desired form. After it is dry it is embellished and framed. Producing needle felted art she uses thin barbed needles. Following the pattern, Younginer slowly pushes the wool yarns (and sometimes silk) with barbed needles into a pre-felt cloth, bonding the yarn to the felt

Lowcountry Artists Gallery in Charleston, SC, Features Works by Lisa Willits

Lowcountry Artists Gallery in Charleston, SC, will present Mystic Vistas, featuring new paintings by Lisa Willits, on view from Oct. 1 - 31, 2023. A reception will be held on Oct. 6, from 5-8pm.

This collection was inspired by the changing moods of the sky and its influence on the coastal landscape, from bright sunny days with the familiar "happy" clouds over the marsh to brooding storm clouds offshore. Says the artist, "for this series, I used different compositional formats and color palettes to heighten the sense of atmosphere and drama in each painting. I love capturing the fleeting effects of light in a moment in time. I hope viewers feel a deeper sense of connection to nature and the elements through this work."

Willits is one of the owner/members of Lowcountry Artists Gallery where she has exhibited her work since 2013. She paints at her home studio in Mt. Pleasant, SC. Her paintings are included in private and corporate collections across the country. She recently installed a commissioned triptych Sky's the Limit at the South Carolina Aeronautical Training Center at Trident Technical College.

Dare Gallery in Charleston, SC, Features Works by Susan Hecht

Dare Gallery in Charleston, SC, will present The Ripple Effect, a show of new work by painter Susan Hecht, on view from Oct. 6 - 27, 2023. A reception will be held on Oct. 6, from 5-8pm.

The Ripple Effect is a collection of new work by painter Susan Hecht that explores the interconnectedness and profound impact of rivers, marshes and oceans on our world. You'll find pieces that showcase the serenity of calm waters, the rhythmic crashing of waves, and the life that thrives above the surface. A celebration of bodies of water, these works of art encourage viewers to contemplate their own connection to the water and the impact of their actions on the delicate balance of nature. The smallest ripple can create a profound effect on the entire ecosystem.

Hecht says, "For me, art brings to life the details, the things we appreciate without realizing. My work focuses on the beauty of simplicity, the commonalities in the everyday, the things we can relate to. Because it's our relationships that matter most; relationships between people, between past and present, between light and dark, between the individual and the whole."

Favorite subjects of Hecht are the familiar saltmarshes and tidal creeks that weave throughout the coastal landscape. The dynamic ecosystems found in these wetlands provide endless sources of inspiration for her paintings. In these pieces, the sway of marsh grasses and the play of light on the water's surface are captured. The freedom of soaring seagulls and graceful egrets are portrayed in joyful, serene tones. With expressive brushwork and Hecht's signature warm and inviting palette, these paintings will leave you with a sense of peace and reflection.

This show also includes several large-scale paintings portraying the vastness and power of oceans, the ebb and flow of the tides, and whispering sea oats. The light and shadows in Hecht's paintings of dunes highlight the beauty of something as ordinary as sand, with footprints giving a subtle nod to the human connection. These works serve as a moving reminder of the immense beauty and fragility of our waterways, emphasizing the ripple effect that extends beyond their shores and impacts all life on Earth.

"Through my work, I hope to evoke that sense of connection and create something beautiful that others can enjoy," says Hecht.

McGreevey enjoys working intuitively, employing brush, scraper, palette knife, her hands, and anything else she can think of using. She works on multiple artworks simultaneously. She's inspired by the very idea of creating that which didn't exist before. "As artists we have the God-given talent to create whatever we want and this gives us a sense of freedom and excitement in the endless possibilities. The hard part is stepping out of our own comfort zone, letting go of the fear of failure, and making that first brush stroke."

In conjunction with the exhibit, Art League is offering a one-day workshop with the artist entitled "Contemporary Abstract Art: Letting Loose," suited to beginner and intermediate students interested in learning to become more confident in taking chances in their work. The class is $100 ($90 for Art League members), with a $20 supply fee, and will take place Oct. 31, from 10am-4pm.

Society of Bluffton Artists in Bluffton, SC, Features Works by Margi Smith

The Society of Bluffton Artists in Bluffton, SC, will present Wonder Filled Wanderings, featuring works by Margi Smith, from Oct. 2 - 29, 2023. A reception will be held on Oct. 3, from 5-7pm.

Wonder Filled Wanderings will feature a collection of abstract acrylic paintings. Smith is known to grab oil pastels, pencils, hardware tools, water bottles, string, scrapers, anything that makes an interesting mark, to get the painting to make the statement she wants to convey. Her work explores the journey of the environment around that she calls home and the magic that a place or time brings - including the shared moments with people and places she loves that define her life’s experience. Many of the pieces in the series are influenced by her walks through beautiful country roads with dear friends, reflecting the love of friendship, the bonds of shared roots and the beauty of nature.

“I am inspired by the magic moments that happen in nature, with the movement of applied paint. When we don’t even notice until we step back and really look, allowing ourselves to understand the seen and unseen,” Smith said. “Those are the moments that sparkle with enchantment; when we stop and see what is in front of us.”

Smith studied studio art and English Literature at Skidmore College. In addition

Clemson University in Clemson, SC, Celebrates 50 Years of Its MFA Program

Clemson University's Master of Fine Arts program is celebrating a half-century of art and learning with a three-part exhibition featuring a wide variety of art from its graduates and receptions featuring reflections from notable alumni and supporters of the MFA program.

As Good as Gold: 50 Years of the MFA at Clemson, is being presented in three parts including: Part I, on view in the Lee Gallery, through Oct. 31, 2023; Part III, on view in the Lee Gallery, from Jan. 26 through Mar. 8, 2024, and, on view at the Brooks Center for Performing Arts - Lobby Area, through Oct. 31, 2023. A reception has been tentatively planned for Jan. 26, from 5-7pm in the Lee Gallery.

"Celebrating the 50-year anniversary of our MFA program in visual arts fills me with immense pride and excitement," said Kathleen Thum, associate professor and MFA graduate program coordinator. "This milestone allows us to honor and witness the incredible successes of our alumni, achieved over five decades, while also looking forward to the promising future ahead."

The MFA program was created in 1970 with a single student in the Department of Visual Studies, the predecessor to the Department of Art. Fifty years later, it boasts more than 250 graduates.

Jeanet Dreskin, 101, the first graduate of Clemson University's Master of Fine Arts program, points to a detail in one of her "sere" paintings in her room in a retirement home in Greenville, Aug. 8, 2023.

department of Art. Fifty years later, it boasts more than 250 graduates.

The student who started it all was Jeanet Dreskin '73, who remains a cherished pioneer for women in the arts at nearly 102 years young.

Dreskin became Clemson's first MFA graduate and orchestrated an impressive and diverse career, beginning as a staff artist for the American Museum of Natural History, then as a certified medical illustrator, the director of the Greenville County Museum of Art school and an independent studio artist. Her artwork is

in collections all over the world, including at the Smithsonian American Art Museum, the Gibbes Museum of Art, the Asheville Art Museum and more.

A recent visit to Dreskin's room at a senior living facility in Greenville found her as sprightly and passionate as ever about the visual arts. When presented with one of the 50-year-old paintings she created while still a Clemson student, she remarked, "There's an old friend!"

She has given back to Clemson over the years, most notably through the Dr. E. Arthur and Jeanet S. Dreskin Travel Fellowship Endowment, which has had a profound impact on decades of MFA students by enabling them to study abroad, something she sees as vitally important.

"Funding travel for students was very important because I felt they needed to get a picture of what was happening in other parts of the world," Dreskin said. "My husband and I decided that one of the things we'd like to do would be to set up a program so young people could travel abroad and see what was happening in other places. It's very important, particularly with the arts, to be aware of what's going on in other areas of the world."

The MFA is considered the terminal degree in the visual arts. Clemson's program offers concentrations in the studio areas of drawing, painting, printmaking, ceramics, photography and sculpture. Interdisciplinary and collaborative projects are encouraged within the department. The primary goal of the program is to provide students opportunities to develop a high degree of professional competence in their chosen area of concentration.

En Iwamura '16 came to Clemson's MFA program after meeting Department of Art chair Valerie Zimany while she was on research leave for a Fulbright-Hays award in Japan.

"To be honest, I was born and raised in Japan, so I had no idea where Clemson was or what it looked like," said Iwamura. "I couldn't speak any English, wasn't familiar with American culture, life and customs, and I had no relatives or friends there. But Valerie convinced me an MFA degree from Clemson would set me up for success as an artist. It was the biggest decision I made in my life and the best one."

Today Iwamura's whimsical ceramic sculptures have been celebrated in exhibitions all over the world, from his native Japan to France, China, Australia and all over the United States.

"I believe people need to get out from their comfortable zone to grab opportunities they haven't imagined," Iwamura said. "For me, those three years I spent at Clemson were tough but one of the brightest memories I have."

Kathleen Thum said that graduate students are the heart of the Department of Art, and their commitment to the artistic practice and academic rigor energizes the department's faculty and undergraduates.

"As we celebrate this significant milestone of our MFA program, we will continue to build upon the foundation of excellence laid down by our remarkable alumni over the past 50 years," said Thum. "Together, we will nurture a community of diverse artists and scholars, fostering creativity, collaboration and innovation as we continue to shape the future of visual arts for generations to come."

Jeanet Dreskin succinctly summed up the appeal of making a living as an artist: "I love working in the arts because it's endless. You can create in any direction you want to go."

Greenville Center for Creative Arts in Greenville, SC, Offers Group Exhibit

Greenville Center for Creative Arts (GCCA) in Greenville, SC, is excited to announce the opening of their Main Gallery exhibition, Parting Lines. The exhibition features the artwork of acclaimed artists Tea Youn Kim-Kassor, Mayuko Ono Gray, and Sabre Esler. GCCA will hold the opening reception on Oct. 6, from 6-9pm, and continues on display until Nov. 22, 2023.

In Parting Lines, artists Tea Youn Kim-Kassor, Mayuko Ono Gray, and Sabre Esler explore common threads of human existence, memory, and identity through varying representations of lines, whether explicit or implied. Featuring over 30 intricate drawings, paintings, and silk works, Parting Lines invites us to consider the power of diverse perspectives converging on a shared exploration of what it means to be human.

Tea Youn Kim-Kassor's installation series, "Modulation," delves into the concept of identity and questions the interplay between personal history and migration. Her work speaks to the universal human experience of grappling with questions like "Who am I?" and "Where am I?" as we navigate life's complexities.

Sabre Esler's art takes a markedly scientific approach, probing the invisible constructs of thoughts. Esler uses color theory to represent abstract ideas. Her "what if" hypotheses serve as a bridge between art and science, resonating with the exhibition's theme of exploring uncharted territories of the human condition.

Mayuko Ono Gray's graphite drawings offer a unique blend of cultural influences, seamlessly merging traditional Japanese calligraphy with Western drawing practices. Ono Gray's works capture everyday life experiences and incorporate matching Japanese proverbs, intricately woven into a single, continuous line of hiragana and kanji characters. The calligraphic line symbolizes the journey of life, from birth to death, echoing the overarching theme of the exhibition.

Mayuko Ono Gray is an artist based in Houston, TX, whose primary medium is graphite drawing. Born in Gifu, Japan, she was trained in traditional Japanese calligraphy in her youth and later studied classical Western drawing. Ono Gray moved to the United States following high school and went on to receive an MFA in painting from the University of Houston in 2007. Her work has been exhibited extensively in the United States and abroad, including exhibitions in Japan, Mexico, Germany, Italy, UK, and Greece. Greenville Technical College in Greer, SC, Features Works From the Carolina Print Collective Greenville Technical College in Greer, SC, is presenting Exquisite Connections: A Print Installation from the Contemporary Print Collective, on view in the Benson Campus Galleries, through Oct. 13, 2023.

Exquisite Connections is a sprawling installation of 6-inch square prints in Gallery 2. The creation of the individual prints is based on a parlor game (Exquisite Corpse) invented by the French Surrealist, André Breton. In Breton's game, player 1 would make a drawing and cover part of the drawing only revealing a connection point. The drawing was then passed on to player 2 who would add a drawing beginning at the connection point and so on. It was a process of discovery and creative solutions that would often result in an absurd product.

The Contemporary Print Collective had canceled their monthly meetings during Covid quarantine. Printmaking, being an inherently collaborative medium, the membership sought a catalyst for remote gathering and sharing. Exquisite Connection became the solution. Exquisite Connection follows the premises of the original game but with hand-pulled prints.

The parameters of Exquisite Connection specified individual prints be a 6-inch square of black ink on white paper, with designated connection points on at least two sides. The 12 participants worked in randomly assigned pairs to make works in response to each other. Interpretation and subject were unique for each participant.

The prints are now installed, matching connection points, to produce a single work that sprawls across two walls. The magic of Exquisite Connections is that with only a minimum of parameters, the many parts come together as a coherent whole. It can be altered through installation design and space to create a myriad of final products.

The Contemporary Print Collective (CPC) is a group of 20+ professional artists based in the Greenville Center for Creative Arts in Greenville, SC. CPC members are actively engaged in printmaking and in the field through creations and exhibitions of fine-art prints. CPC provides a venue for printmakers and print collectors to gather, collaborate, and share on a monthly basis.

According to CPC, "It is our mission to create, exhibit, collaborate, and educate through printmaking and within the contemporary dialectic of art. We seek to foster an awareness of original, hand-pulled prints by promoting exhibitions, educational opportunities, and encouraging the art of collecting prints."

20:/20 Unity, a portfolio exchange among 19 CPC members is a bonus feature of this exhibition and is installed in Gallery 1. 20:/20 Unity was initially exhibited at the Anderson Arts Center in late 2019 and early 2020.

Art & Light Gallery in Greenville, SC, Features Works by Eric Benjamin and Michelle Jardines

Art & Light Gallery in Greenville, SC, is pleased to present Bold Whispers, a two-person exhibition of recent work by Greenville, SC, artists Eric Benjamin and Michelle Jardines, on view from Oct. 3 - 28, 2023. A reception on Oct. 6, from 6-8pm.

While the artists differ in their approach to the painting medium, Benjamin and Jardines share a love for bold color and find inspiration in the vibrant hues and dynamic textures they observe in the natural world. Benjamin often employs a rich and saturated color palette, infusing his landscapes with a sense of energy and vitality. His brushstrokes are confident and expressive, capturing the essence of a moment in time. Jardines embraces a looser painting technique, combining blended and gestural brushwork to convey the moody and ever-shifting nature of the landscape.

Main & Maxwell in Greenwood, SC, Offers Works by Alice Lewis, Hallie Smith, and Asia Johnson

Main & Maxwell in Greenwood, SC, will present Paint, Pottery, and Polymer, which highlights the work of painter, Alice Lewis, potter Hallie Smith, and polymer jeweler Asia Johnson, of Greenwood, SC, on view from Oct. 1 through Nov. 30, 2023. A reception will be held on Nov. 2, from 5-7pm.

Like many artists, Alice Lewis has been an artist ever since she can remember. Crafting, sewing, drawing, and painting led her to study Fine Art at Lander University where she received her BA. Everything that Lewis does is influenced by color and texture, which she finds visually stimulating. She loves the freedom, challenge, and excitement of art. The play and spontaneity involved in painting abstracts keeps her motivated to create every day.

For the last several years, Lewis has been focusing on abstract paintings, recently winning first place in The Annual Artist Guild Show at the Arts Center of Greenwood. She also loves the challenge of painting portraits of animals or people as well as landscapes and cityscapes, but her true love is expressive abstract. For the past ten years, Lewis has been an active member of The Greenwood Artist Guild. Her work is part of collections in the private sector as well as local churches and financial institutions.

Work by Alice Lewis

Potter Hallie Smith grew up in a creative family and had her first ceramics experience when she was eight years old. Picking it up again in high school and in college helped direct her to a career in creating ceramic work full time. Smith credits her art teacher, Mrs. Thomas, for developing her love of ceramics and as a result, she has began sharing her love of the medium with others by teaching ceramic classes at Main & Maxwell in Greenwood and No. 3 Pottery in Simpsonville, SC.

Smith's approach to her work ebbs and flows depending on her creative mood and her particular style is still growing and changing. One day she may concentrate on vases of different sizes and shapes and another day on mug surface decorating. Her repeat customers seeking new work keep her on her toes! Working every day in a medium that is hard on the body is challenging for her and other potters.

Keeping a life - work balance when your work is something you enjoy and want to be doing all day has its drawbacks. According to Smith, it is important to take breaks and rest your wrists and back! She is an active member of the Greenwood Area Potters guild and is currently working diligently on soup bowls for the guild's annual Empty Bowls fundraiser in October.

A mixed media artist since 2015, Asia Johnson is regularly inspired by her earthy and organic surroundings. She is especially influenced by botanicals and is currently incorporating those specific influences in her polymer clay jewelry. Simply being able to create allows Johnson to express her inner thoughts without having to use words. For her, being able to share her love of art with others is the best part of being a working artist.

Johnson wants everyone to know you can never create enough! However, the most challenging part about being an artist in today's world is, for Johnson, the pressure of having to keep up with the marketplace trends. She chooses to not feel rushed in her creative process and while she pays some attention to the trends, she very purposefully creates work that incorporates her own interpretation of those trends.

Recently, Johnson has been working in studio space at Main & Maxwell where she occasionally teaches classes in polymer clay. In her spare time the busy artist and mom plays competitive ultimate frisbee!

"Artists from South Carolina, North Carolina, Georgia, Tennessee, and Virginia submitted work for the Artist Collective | Spartanburg's Juried Exhibition this year," says Beth Regula, chair of the managing board of ACS. "Nearly 200 artists entered almost 500 pieces of art to be considered

Artists Collective | Spartanburg, in Spartanburg, SC, will present Dancing Through Life, featuring works by Beth Regula, on view in Gallery II, from Oct. 3 - 28, 2023. A reception will be held on Oct. 19, from 6-9pm, when Kaleo Wheeler will share traditional Hawaiian Sacred Hula, during ArtWalk Spartanburg, with an artist talk given at 6:30pm.

As a child, Regula always wanted to dance, as far back as she can remember, but lessons were not in the cards. So, the Spartanburg artist "learned to dance using by our judge, Virginia Derryberry, professor of art, drawing and painting, emerita, at the University of North Carolina Asheville. From images of those entries, she could choose up to 70 for the exhibition – she selected 69. The juror only saw the images, not the names or states of the artists, when selecting those for display and the winners."

Regula explains that once the art arrived at the gallery, it was hung and then Derryberry viewed them in person and selected the award winners. "Still, with no names or states provided; her decision was based on the merit of the art alone."

"The annual Juried Exhibition always brings beautiful, interesting and thought-provoking pieces to Spartanburg, and this year is no exception," Regula adds. "We look forward every year to meeting artists from beyond the Artists Collective's community. Being able to meet and talk with other artists broadens our knowledge of the art being made in our region."

Exhibition juror Derryberry's own artwork focuses on large scale figure narrative paintings which blend elements from mythology and alchemy, the forerunner of modern science. Her work is shown regularly in solo and group exhibitions throughout the United States and has been written about in an extensive list of publications, including exhibition catalogs, the New American Paintings magazine and the Oxford American magazine. Solo exhibitions, such as Private Domain and Truth To Tell, have traveled during the past five years to venues in Nevada, North Carolina, South Carolina, Alabama, Illinois, Pennsylvania, Virginia, Florida and Georgia.

In 2017, Derryberry was the recipient of the College Art Association's Distinguished Teaching of Art award and in 2020, was interviewed at the College Art Association's session on Amazing Women Artists.

In 2023, Derryberry was awarded an artist grant from the North Carolina Arts Council. Her drawings and paintings are in numerous private and public collections, including the Carnegie Museum in Pittsburgh, the Asheville Art Museum, the Tennessee State Museum, the State of West Virginia permanent collection, and the Morris Museum of Art. Two public art installations include 16 paintings at the Hartsfield-Atlanta International Airport and a 10-piece multipanel painting at the Knoxville Convention Center.

"As a child, I wanted to dance. I felt this when I was happy and excited," says Regula, chair of the managing board of ACS who paints and creates sculptures, both of which will be in the exhibit along with relief wall hangings. "I could not keep my feet still. It happened when I did not have the words to express how I felt about changes in the seasons especially – spring and fall. My senses were so overloaded that I could not contain how I was feeling. I wanted to dance with the flowers, the trees and the wind. It was my way of embracing the world. I wanted to hold it and say, 'I love you. You are my friend.'"

Not having her desire for dance lessons fulfilled, Regula "danced" through her art. "My work has been described as lyrical, and I would agree that most of the work has a flowing expressive feeling about it."

In the exhibition, Regula has divided the works into two categories: figurative, "my version of dancers – their arms and legs appearing to be in motion, setting up movement of lines and color in the spaces around them," she says; and "scenes from nature," inspired by her garden. "I love the wind, plants, sky and water. As I look at the flowers moving in the wind, they appear to be dancing."

Some people describe Regula's works as "other worldly." She agrees. "I really do not talk about this often, but I do feel that images come to me sometimes from another place. I cannot explain this. I just accept it and relay these images in my art to the viewer. The viewer can see or feel whatever they want to about this work."

Work by Beth Regula

Regula adds, "I recently came across a verb from Middle English - 'balter' - meaning to dance gracelessly, without particular art or skill, but perhaps with some enjoyment. This is what I wish for viewers. Find a way to balter."

Her desire to illustrate her love for dance drew Regula to include Kaleo Wheeler's hula exhibition. "Kaleo will be sharing traditional Hawaiian Sacred Hula, and feels it is a perfect fit," Regula says.

Wheeler adds: "Hula is an ancient form of storytelling through movement. With its

Artists Collective | Spartanburg, in Spartanburg, SC, will present Because I Can, featuring works of kiln fired glass by Judy Martin, on view in Gallery III, from Oct. 3 - 28, 2023. A reception will be held on Oct. 19, from 6-9pm, during ArtWalk Spartanburg.

Upstate glass artist Judy Martin wants to use her art to help people look at things differently - that glass can be used in different ways and that art is about freedom.

"This show of glass shows some different ways glass can be used in art," Martin says. "Some of the pieces include casting, molding and painting. Some of the many ways glass can be used for art will be on display. The majority of this show will be painted glass showing nature as my mind sees it."

Martin wants the visitors to the exhibition to see that "art is freedom, art is what you want it to be. Art doesn't need to fit into other people's thought of it. It is our own freedom to wonder and fall into. My goal always is to see people smile when they look at my art. I want them to see some of what can be made with glass."

"Glass is a fading art, and we can't let happen," she adds. "The art has been around for many, many years and there are not many people working with any kind of

It helps to bring you into kinship with nature and your place within it, interpreting the world that you occupy more fully and authentically in the way you move - dance - and perceive it."

Regula, a native of South Carolina, earned a degree from Winthrop University. She has been an art educator in schools from the foothills of South Carolina to the coast. She briefly worked in Atlanta, using her art educator experience in designing computer-based manuals and training programs. In 1983, she married her husband, Dennis, and moved back to South Carolina, where she continued to pursue her career as a professional artist. Regula's works can be found in private, corporate and museum collections. She has won awards in various regional juried competitions and has had solo and group exhibitions throughout the Upstate.

Questions from people across the East Coast who have seen her work inspired the exhibit. "They ask, 'Why do you paint on glass? Why not paint on canvas?' I want them to see that painting on glass can have dimension, not just be flat like on canvas."

Martin has created with glass for a long time, mostly fused glass. The covid pandemic "brought many changes for many people, and I am no different," she says. "My fused glass was sitting in boxes with nowhere to display and no one to purchase. Why make more was my thought. I took this time to take online glass painting classes from Marguerite Beneke in South Africa. I had always admired her painting on glass, so I thought there was no better time than covid time."

Martin, a native of Westfield, NY, says her work with glass started 20 years ago with stained glass before moving into fused glass. "I have played with many different types of craft and art all my life. There have been yarns, sewing machines, clay, wax, paint and a myriad of other things until I came across glass."

A member of ACS for six years, Martin says she enjoys exhibiting there and meeting the visitors to the exhibitions. "The people at ACS are a hot mess of good art people who are always welcoming."

She also has been accepted into shows in Cape Coral and Fort Myers, FL; Hilton Head, SC; Buffalo, NY; and Hendersonville, NC, and other locations.

The 30 works in the exhibit will be available for purchase, with prices ranging from $30 to $300.

The University of South Carolina Upstate in Spartanburg, SC, is presenting Charting the Badlands: Drawings and Meditations, featuring works by Sara Schneckloth, on view in the USC Upstate Gallery at the Chapman Cultural Center, through Nov. 2, 2023. A closing reception will be held on Nov. 2, from 5-7pm.

UPSTATE Gallery, sponsored by the University of South Carolina Upstate, is honored to announce Charting the Badlands: Drawings and Meditations, by Sara Schneckloth. Drawings and aerial videography are integrated to create a visual experience of material, landscape, and bodily space. Drawing is considered within the context of mapping landforms across periods of human activity, impact, and absence. Since 2014, Schneckloth has been creating drawings that describe the natural and built environments of rural New Mexico, focusing primarily on the badlands of the San Juan Basin.

Work by Sara Schneckloth

Schneckloth's drawings originate from the physical spaces she explores in Northern New Mexico, moving between ancestral Puebloan ruins, surrounding badlands, and handheld fragments of stone. She layers and manipulates natural pigments, ink, charcoal, graphite, watercolor and wax, so that each mark echoes the surfaces and forms she has seen or touched. These drawings reference the history and physicality of place, chart-

Schneckloth's expansive drawing practice has been exhibited throughout the United States, South Africa, France, Norway, and the United Kingdom. She has published numerous essays on drawing and embodiment, and runs collaborative drawing workshops at venues including the Metropolitan Museum of Art, the OXO Bargehouse, London, and at universities across the country. The quote, "A gender line...helps keep women not on a pedestal, but in a cage," by Ruth Bader Ginsburg, highlights the notion that women are often confined to specific roles and expectations in society. It is a reminder that women have been historically excluded from specific opportunities, particularly when it comes to earning wages.

Rights, Gender Studies, Feminism, and Female Justice dialogues. However, this powerful statement, seen through an artistic lens, opens endless possibilities to decode, reveal, express, and create meanings within diverse art forms and discussions.

The concept of “line” can be perceived and defined differently across various fields and perspectives. For instance, a line is one of the seven essential elements in art, considered “a moving dot.” In literature, a line can be a subdivision of a poem, and in music, it may refer to a phrase or complete thought. In everyday conversations, we use the phrase “reading between the lines” to infer hidden or implicit meanings.

A Gender Line showcases the works of female visual artists and writers, all South Carolina residents from various cultural backgrounds, including African American, Asian, Latina, and Persian. The exhibition responds to Ruth Bader Ginsburg’s statement, emphasizing the need to break free from gender barriers and promote gender equality.

University of South Carolina at Lancaster, SC, Offers New Exhibits

The University of South Carolina at Lancaster, SC, is presenting two new exhibitions including: Backyard Vines: Artwork by Nancy Basket, featuring long leaf pine needle baskets, kudzu paper art, and other organic woven wonders made by traditional artist Nancy Basket, on view in the Center’s North Gallery through Feb. 15, 2024, and More than a Game: Indigenous Sports and Athleticism, on display in conjunction with the 18th Annual Native American Studies Week, Indigenous Athletes and Athleticism: Vital Contributions to a National Passion, on view in the Center’s Five Points Gallery through Aug. 5, 2024.

A culmination of her four-month appearance as the Center’s Artist-in-Residence during fall of 2019, the exhibit What Do You Have in Your Back Yard?: The Traditional Artwork of Nancy Basket was open for a handful of weeks at the Center before the facility’s temporary closure in March 2020. Some of the artwork featured in the original exhibit will return, such as the 8-foot sculptures of the Uktena (featuring motion-sensor eyes) and Thunderbird, along with new pieces, like oversized kudzu chandeliers.

Also included in the exhibit are thumb-sized miniatures, pine needle baskets, woven baskets, manikin floor lamps, and more. In addition to working with pine needles and kudzu, Basket has woven with corn

Basket has worked with long leaf pine needles for over 40 years, helping form the first basketry guild in North America with friend Vi Phillips. “I’m very excited to have another show after the first one was only open to the public two weeks during the Covid shutdown,” said Basket. “Come see what you, too, can do with pervasive vines. Got any in your yard?”

Take an in-depth look at Indigenous sports and athleticism and see a display of woven wonders of artwork made from vines and natural plant materials in two new exhibits which have opened at the Native American Studies Center: More than a Game: Indigenous Sports and Athleticism, and Indigenous Athletes and Athleticism: Vital Contributions to a National Passion.

The athletics-focused exhibit highlights information about Indigenous athletes—some with Carolina connections, such as Buck George, who played football for the Clemson Tigers and the team now known as the Washington Commanders—and their contributions to the Olympics and competitive sports such as basketball, hockey, football, wrestling, track and field, and more.

Columbia Museum of Art in Columbia, SC, Offers Fashion Photography Exhibit

The Columbia Museum of Art in Columbia, SC, will present Lee Alexander McQueen & Ann Ray: Rendez-Vous, a major fashion and photography exhibition on view from Oct. 7 through Jan. 21, 2024. Curated and organized by Barrett Barrera Projects, Rendez-Vous debuted at the Crocker Art Museum in Sacramento, CA, and will make its second stop at the CMA this fall before continuing its multi-city tour.

“McQueen continues to endure, inspire, and fascinate, and this exhibition gives rare access to be up close to a designer who transcended the world of fashion,” says CMA Director of Art and Learning Jackie Adams. “The intimate portraits Ann Ray captured of her friend reveal genuine moments of the designer’s creativity, strength, vulnerability, and individualism, giving viewers authentic moments of the person versus the persona.”

Lee Alexander McQueen & Ann Ray: Rendez-Vous explores the 13-year friendship and intimate creative collaboration between the late British designer Lee Alexander McQueen - one of the most renowned contemporary fashion designers of our era - and French photographer Ann Ray, whom McQueen personally selected to document his design process and the behind-the-scenes experience of his runway shows.

“You know, it was simple. He was part of my life, we loved each other, I had rendez-vous,” said Ray. McQueen and Ray’s friendship began with a simple agreement in which money, business considerations and fashion had no place. “I like your images but I’m broke. Give me your photos, I’ll give you clothes,” Ray recalls McQueen expressing to her early in their relationship.

The exhibition features more than 60 photographs taken by Ray, reflecting her unique relationship with McQueen between the years of 1997 and 2010, alongside garments McQueen gifted to her over the course of their work together.

Rendez-Vous also features over 50 spectacular McQueen pieces from Barrett Barrera Projects’ collection, the largest private collection of McQueen’s work and owner of Ray’s full McQueen photographic archive. Altogether, these garments, photographs, and corresponding ephemera tell the story of the iconic duo’s intertwined artistic journey and friendship.

“With Columbia being central to fashion-loving cities such as Charleston, Atlanta, Savannah, and Charlotte, Rendez-Vous has great potential to attract visitors regionally, and we’re excited to be a hub for folks from our community and beyond to experience the work of a revered and respected icon of fashion,” says Adams.

Lee Alexander McQueen was born in 1969 to a working-class East London family. At the age of 16, he dropped out of high school to pursue his love of fashion — first as a tailor’s apprentice on Savile Row and later in the prestigious MA Fashion program at Central Saint Martins. In 1993, he founded his eponymous label, which he oversaw until his death in 2010. Between 1996 and 2001, McQueen served as the creative director of the storied Parisian couturier Givenchy, a subsidiary of the luxury conglomerate L.V.M.H. He was awarded British Designer of the Year multiple times, and in 2003 he was awarded the C.B.E. (Commander of the Order of the British Empire) by Queen Elizabeth II. Over the course of his brief 18-year career, McQueen singlehandedly altered the course of modern fashion with his decade-defining silhouettes and expressive runway presentations that combined the conceptual depth of avant-garde performance art with the high glamor of luxury fashion.

Ann Ray is a multidisciplinary French artist, filmmaker, and author. Her professional career began while working for Givenchy in Japan in the 1990s. While living there, she became immersed in Japanese culture and craftsmanship, learning philosophies of creation from senseis in various trades such as ceramics, painting, and kimono design. These relationships had a fundamental impact on her own art and professional life at Givenchy. When she met Lee Alexander McQueen at Givenchy in Paris in 1997, marking the start of their 13-year creative partnership and friendship, the artistic point of view she acquired during her time studying under Japanese masters formed the basis of their early conversations. In the performing arts sphere, Ray works for Opéra Garnier in Paris and New York’s Metropolitan Opera. Her work has been exhibited at venues worldwide, including Palais du Tau in Reims, Palais Garnier in Paris, Ca’Pesaro Museum in Venice, the Museum at FIT in New York, and Rencontres d’Arles. Ray’s artworks appear in art collections internationally, including the Victoria & Albert Museum, Museum of Fine Arts Boston, and Fondation Carmignac (Paris). She has published seven books, including Nicolas Le Riche (2008), Love Looks Not with the Eyes (2012), Les Inachevés (2018), and Eyes Shut (2022). Ray works and lives in France between Paris and Brittany.

Arts Center of Kershaw County in Camden, SC, Features Works by Janet Swigler

The Arts Center of Kershaw County in Camden, SC, will present Quilted Impressions 2, featuring works by renowned fiber artist, Janet Swigler, on view in the Bassett Gallery, from Oct. 3 - 31, 2023. A reception will be held on Oct. 3, from 5:30-7pm, with a gallery talk at 6pm.

Works in the exhibition span a seven year period of creation. Some of the quilts are one-of-a-kind, while others are part of a series. All of them express what Janet Swigler loves: color and line.

Quilt making, Swigler’s art form, incorporates principles of art - quality of line, value, proportion, and figure/ground composition. Imaginative re-structuring of a simple shape or motif are important components. Swigler’s art honors the tradition of quilt making and shows the versatility of a medium that uses only fabric and thread.

Janet Swigler's signature medium - quilting - combines a process of stitching and manipulating fabric with an intuitive and creative use of patterns. Swigler often works free-hand, and avoids using templates traditionally utilized in the process of quilt-making, preferring an intuitive process of discovery and creation. For Swigler, quilt making incorporates many of the principles of art: line quality, value, proportion, and

Swigler has worked in this style since 2013, often under the guidance of innovative quilt maker Nancy Crow of the Smithsonian Museum's Renwick Alliance.

Asheville Art Museum in Asheville, NC, Explores the Captivating World of Photorealism

The Asheville Art Museum in Asheville, NC, is pleased to announce Beyond the Lens: Photorealist Perspectives on Looking, Seeing, and Painting, on view through Feb. 5, 2024.

Throughout the history of painting from the mid-19th century forward, artists have used an endless variety of approaches to record their world. Beyond the Lens: Photorealist Perspectives on Looking, Seeing, and Painting continues this thread, offering an opportunity to explore a singular and still forceful aspect of American art. Photorealism shares many of the approaches of historical and modernist realism, with a twist. The use of the camera as a basic tool for organizing visual information in advance of painterly expression is now quite common, but Photorealists embraced the camera as the focal point in their creative process.

Beyond the Lens presents key works from the collection of Louis K. and Susan Pear Meisel, bringing together paintings and works on paper dating from the 1970s to the present to focus on this profoundly influential art movement. The exhibition includes work by highly acclaimed formative artists of the movement such as Charles Bell, Robert Bechtle, Tom Blackwell, Richard Estes, Audrey Flack, and Ralph Goings as well as paintings by the successive generations of Photorealist artists Anthony Brunelli, Davis Cone, Bertrand Meniel, Rod Penner, and Raphaella Spence.

1960s in California and New York, coexisting with an explosion of new ideas in art-making that included Conceptual, Pop, Minimalism, Land and Performance Art. At first, representational realism coexisted with the thematic and conceptual explosion but was eventually relegated to the margins regarding critical and curatorial attention. Often misunderstood and sometimes negatively criticized or lampooned as a betrayal of modernism's commitment to abstraction, the artists involved in Photorealism remained committed explorers of the trail they had blazed.

In the decades of the late twentieth century and early twenty-first century, realistic and symbolic painting experienced a renaissance, as contemporary artists are increasingly drawn to narrative and storytelling. Concurrently, using a camera as a preparatory tool equally legitimate and valuable as pencils and pens has made the rubric of Photorealism increasingly relevant.

Terrie Sultan states, "The works presented in Beyond the Lens are artistically diverse and survey the evolution of Photorealism, a genre that has continuously pushed the boundaries of perception and representation. We hope visitors will appreciate for the artists' craftsmanship and remarkable attention to detail and invite them to explore the distinction between reality and illusion."

This exhibition was organized by the Asheville Art Museum and guest curated by Terrie Sultan. This exhibition is sponsored in part by Jim and Julia Calkins Peterson.

Established by artists and incorporated in 1948, the Asheville Art Museum is committed to being a vital force in community and individual development and to providing lifelong opportunities for education and enrichment through the visual arts. The new Museum, opened in November 2019, serves as a cultural, educational, and architectural anchor in the center of downtown Asheville. The Museum's Collection explores 20th- and 21st-century American art with works that illustrate American aesthetic and cultural development. The Collection also preserves the artistic traditions of the Southern Appalachian region, reflects the unique combination of cultures in Western North Carolina, and explores the mutual influence of Southern Appalachia on American art. The Museum acknowledges that it is situated upon the ancient, Southern Appalachian ancestral homeland of the Cherokee Tribe and that this region is still the home of the Eastern Band of Cherokee Indians today. The Asheville Art Museum is a 501(c)3 non-profit organization, accredited by the American Alliance of Museums and

Featured artworks in the exhibition include diverse subject matters, but the primary focus is on the common and every day: urban scenes, "portraits" of cars, trucks, and motorcycles, still life compositions using toys, food, candy wrappers, and salt and pepper shakers. All provide opportunities for virtuoso studies in how light, reflection, and the camera as intermediary shapes our perception of the material world.

This multigenerational survey demonstrates how the 35-mm camera, and later technological advances in digital image-making, informed and impacted the painterly gesture. Taken together, the paintings and works on paper in Beyond the Lens show how simply spellbinding these virtuosic works of art can be.

"Beyond the Lens offers a fascinating look into the Photorealism movement and delves into the profound connection between the artists' observation and creative process," says Pamela L. Myers, Executive Director of Asheville Art Museum. "We are delighted to present this curated collection of artworks encapsulating the creative vision and technical precision that defines this artistic genre."

Southern Highland Craft Guild in Asheville, NC, Will Present the 76th Fall Edition Craft Fair of the Southern Highlands - Oct. 19 - 22, 2023

For four days in October, Harrah's Cherokee Center-Asheville comes to life with both functional and decorative crafts made in the Southern Highland region. Over one hundred artists, makers, and craftspeople will fill the two-level building to sell their works of pottery, sculpture, furniture, tapestry, apparel, mixed-media, jewelry, and more, from Oct. 19 -22, 2023, from 10am-5pm. Admission is $10 for adults and children under 12 free, with adults.

Unlike other fairs, the Craft Fair of the Southern Highlands is an experience, a place to show off the talent and innovation of regional makers. It is diverse: crafts rooted in Appalachian traditions are featured alongside contemporary works. Walking through the Craft Fair, visitors witness the evolution of American craft objects, learning how traditional processes can capture the modern world through the artist's medium. The focus of the fairs is on the process of craft, often lost in a highly mechanized and digital world; the work of the hand - iron is hammered to become a fireplace tool, splints of white oak are harvested to become a basket. This theme is reflected throughout the fair with live interactive demonstrations where visitors can learn processes from highly-trained craftspeople.

Also over the weekend, local musicians perform traditional and bluegrass mountain music on the downstairs stage. Visitors to the fair will have the opportunity to win a piece of fine craft by one of the exhibitors by entering to win the raffle;

all proceeds going towards the Southern Highland Craft Guild's educational mission.

Since 1948, the Craft Fair of the Southern Highlands has showcased work by members of the Southern Highland Craft Guild, (SHCG) a non-profit organization dedicated to keeping crafts alive and relevant in modern times. Having been accepted into the Guild through a rigorous jury process, the artists at the fair represent the finest in the Appalachian region. Membership to the SHCG is open to craftspeople, makers, and artists living in the mountain counties of nine states from Maryland to Alabama.

Asheville, North Carolina, nestled in the Blue Ridge Mountains, provides the perfect setting for the Craft Fair. Long known as an arts and crafts destination, Asheville offers architectural charm, eclectic restaurants and a wide variety of lodging. As an organization, the Guild has been serving artists in this area since 1930.

“Creating a world in which craft and other native talents can flourish – this is the Guild’s legacy. The craftspeople of Southern Appalachia are always aware of tradition and forever renewing themselves from the old sources of nature, family, spiritual life and the desire to share one’s gifts with others,” said Jan Davidson, former director of John C. Campbell Folk School, an educational center of the Southern Highland Craft Guild.

Southern Highland Craft Guild in Asheville Offers Works by Members

The Southern Highland Craft Guild in Asheville, NC, is presenting Finding Balance, featuring works by Barbara Jones, Elaine Dohms, Denece Harrell, Thomas Irven, and Janice MacDonald, on view in the Folk Art Center’s Focus Gallery, through Nov. 13, 2023.

This exhibition features the work of five Guild members: Barbara Jones and Elaine Dohms in fiber, Denece Harrell in clay, Thomas Irven in wood, and Janice MacDonald in mixed media.

With a professional background in illustration, graphic design, quilt design, long-arm quilting, and a love for mixed media art, Barbara Jones manipulates natural and synthetic fabrics, threads, yarns, and ribbons creating intricate colorful designs. “I work in an improvisational style; I don’t have a blueprint or a set of tried-and-true instructions to create one of my pieces.”

“There is no Step 1, Step 2, Step 3 - it’s more like the fiber and I take a journey together. The fiber may pull me one way or I may nudge it in a different direction; sometimes we have a destination in mind, or sometimes we just wander, roaming and rambling until we realize we’ve arrived. I’m always thrilled by this process of discovery and refinement, and I hope the result intrigues and involves the viewer,” states Jones.

Another style of framed fiber in the exhibit is by artist Elaine Dohms, who uses a needle to merge layers of assorted wools, tussah, and margilan silk, creating landscapes full of textures and colors.

Work by Denece Harrell

Her pieces reflect the scenes around her of mountains and trees, framed in burl and natural edge wood such as walnut and ambrosia maple.

Visitors may recognize the work of 2022 Craft Fair of the Southern Highlands featured artist, Denece Harrell, who manipulates layers of porcelain into organic asymmetrical sculptures with gold leaf interiors. Her white and gold pieces captivate viewers, inviting one to reflect on life’s experiences.

When asked about her process Harrell states, “Questioning, searching, and wrestling with ideas of purpose, identity, and worth drive my creative process. Experiences layer, fusing the unexpected and predictable, the uncontrolled and intentional. The juxtapositions that create the story of our lives are reflected in my sculptural porcelain vessels. I am learning to see and to treasure life, shaped by beauty in the hands of love.”

Possibly Thomas Irven’s most recognizable pieces are wooden acorn sculptures and boxes made in various sizes, shapes, colors, and from different types of trees, but this nationally recognized artist makes a variety of wooden sculptures, lamps, and furniture.

Irven is an award-winning artist who has produced custom furniture in his Bellaire, TX, studio since 1987 before moving to Waynesville, NC. With an earned BS in Business and an MS in Occupational Education, Irven has taught woodworking and drafting in public schools and in private institutions. Irven apprenticed under an English master craftsman and has conducted seminars in which he has taught woodworking, woodturning, and design.

The mixed metal sculptures on display are made of scraps of fabric, mica chips, wire, aluminum, recycled materials, cast bronze, complete with metallic, epoxy, and acrylic glazes and show a range of work by Janice MacDonald. Working in mixed media materials for over a decade, MacDonald states, “The goal is to show that ordinary can become extraordinary with little cost, no experience and few tools by anyone with an idea and a need to express themselves by igniting the create spirit.”

American Folk Art in Asheville, NC, Offers Annual Pottery Show

American Folk Art & Framing in Asheville, NC, will present The Harvest Table, the gallery's annual pottery show, on view from Oct. 4 - 25, 2023. A reception will be held on Oct. 6, from 5-8pm.

As the cool autumn season begins, American Folk turns to the upcoming holiday season with anticipation, eagerly awaiting the time of year when gathering together and sharing a table is at the forefront of all our minds.

Often the vessels with which we create and serve these elaborate family meals hold a special place in our holiday traditions. From the humblest bowl that fits perfectly in your hand, to an impressive serving platter used at every family gathering, our serving ware doesn't just hold food, but memories as well.

"Because our potters are focused on creating functional wares, these pieces are hardy and intended to be used, not just visually enjoyed," says gallery owner Julia L. Mills. "To use a piece of art that's been so well-made and well-considered will turn even the small everyday moments into a special occasion."

Simplicity of form and the practicality of handcrafted folk objects had always been a part of potter Caroline Cercone's childhood home in Germany and this joyful, functional spirit still remains vibrant in her studio work today. Now based in Tennessee, Cercone had studied the Japanese Folk Crafts Movement and the folk pottery of Hamada Shoji and Bernard Leach.

Though she had not yet begun any ceramics work herself, Cercone's studies would bring her to Japan to observe the culture and crafts in person. It was there that she developed a strong desire to produce functional pottery for everyday use.

An excellent cook himself, Shawn Ireland often thinks of the perfect serving piece while setting his table, and retires to his studio to create it. His work is both sculptural and functional, with a foundation in folk tradition. Ireland combines materials from NC & GA into his hand-mixed clay bodies, creating a rustic charm and deep sense of place. His clay and glazes are composed of NC feldspar, TN ball clay, and ash from his woodstove and his kiln is fueled with natural gas and wood salvaged from a nearby furniture factory.

Winton & Rosa Eugene are the husband and wife team that create Pottery by Eugene. Though the influence of other potters and artistic movements can be identified in their work, they have created a style that is unique and easily distinguishable from that of other Southern potters. Winton and Rosa's pottery ranges from the delicately painted functional, to concept pieces dealing with various social and global issues. No matter the piece, it is created with great forethought, meticulous attention to detail, and is the product of true collaboration.

American Folk invites you to share in the ultimate joy and usefulness of regional pottery with heirloom quality yet utilitarian wares from 6 of our potters. The Harvest Table features new pottery from Shawn Ireland, Caroline Cercone, Winton & Rosa Eugene, Kim Ellington, and Chad Brown.

Blowing Rock Art and History Museum in Blowing Rock, NC, Offers Several New Exhibits

The Blowing Rock Art and History Museum (BRAHM) in Blowing Rock, NC, is presenting several new exhibits including: Sketching the Personal: Works on Paper by Philip Moose, on view in the Rankin East Gallery, through Nov. 3 and HIGHLIGHTS: Selections from BRAHM's Permanent Collection, on view in the Cannon Gallery, through June 30, 2024.

Philip Moose, his name and his paintings, are nearly ubiquitous in Blowing Rock and the surrounding High Country. Best remembered for his landscapes, especially his countless scenes of Grandfather Mountain, Moose approached painting with a disciplined studio practice, producing a constant stream of pictures that found his work in the homes of so many in this community. Less known is his equally rigorous drawing practice.

Philip Moose, "Banares", Aug. 5, undated, ink on paper in sketchbook, 12 x 18 in. Gift of Frank Sherrill, BRAHM Permanent Collection, 2006.1.15G.

Moose was a prolific world traveler, finding himself throughout Europe, Central America, South Asia, and elsewhere - always with a sketchbook in tow. Where his paintings capture the splendor of mountain scenes with texture and precision, Moose's drawing practice, like so many other artists, tended towards the prosaic recording of his surroundings.

Not every drawing was a preparatory sketch for a grand painting. Some of these images instead seem to be meditations on an especially intriguing object or place. Architectural sketches and cityscapes are common among his works on paper, and suggest a fascination with the built environment, which is particularly evident during his sojourns in cities far and wide. For this artist, his drawings appear to both inform his better known paintings while also serving as an intimate tool in documenting the world he traversed.

Moose is often remembered as a quiet man, but these works on paper indicate that, while not especially loquacious, he was always looking at and considering the landscapes that informed his storied artistic career.

BRAHM stewards a growing Permanent Collection of over 800 objects, as shown in the exhibit HIGHLIGHTS: Selections from BRAHM's Permanent Collection.

Museums build collections for a variety of reasons: preserving artworks and other objects of historical importance for future generations; cataloging, documenting, and researching said objects; and displaying and interpreting the collection for the public through exhibitions, publications, and other educational programs. Each museum approaches collection development with a slightly different ethos or goal in mind. There are many museums eager to share established and innovative art historical narratives or highlight emerging and already significant artists. However, every institution must contend with limited resources and diverse audiences with a seemingly limitless array of visual culture vying for their attention.

Collecting institutions are compelled to articulate their particular identity, and, at just over a decade old, BRAHM has begun in earnest to refine its own. This museum was explicitly founded with an expansive focus on the art and culture of Southern Appalachia. Time and coincidence as well as strategic leadership, philanthropy, and staff expertise have augmented and refined that vision for BRAHM and its collection over the following years. This exhibition works to articulate that emergent trajectory for the museum, identifying the strengths of its Permanent Collection and highlighting the exciting directions in which it is beginning to grow.

a passage from the book "Thirteen Moons" by novelist Charles Frazier in which he describes a local mountain medicine, which is made from "River Nests."

Beginning in January 2023, the photographers featured in this exhibition were invited to explore and reflect upon 112-miles of the Blue Ridge Bartram Trail. Listening to the Land features photography and photo-based installations by thirty-two artists and celebrates this region's rich biodiversity while honoring each person's unique and emergent relationship with the land.

Drawing inspiration from the trail itself, photographers were invited to enter an intimate world where the landscape was alive and waiting to be met, understood, and listened to. Together these artists contemplated their own wild origins while visually reimagining a time when humans moved in respect, harmony, and co-creative kinship with the natural world.

Upstairs Artspace in Tryon, NC, Offers Elizabeth Matheson's 50 Year Survey

Upstairs Artspace in Tryon, NC, will present Uncommon: Elizabeth Matheson Photographs 1970-2018, on view from Oct. 12 through Dec. 2, 2023. A reception will be held on Oct. 21, from 5-7pm, with a Walk & Talk beginning at 5pm.

The exhibition will give Western North Carolina and Upstate South Carolina a look at the work of one North Carolina's most celebrated photographers.

Matheson is one of North Carolina's most renowned photographers, and this exhibit, originally organized by Cassilhaus (a home-based artist residency and exhibition program located between Durham and Chapel Hill), is a survey of images drawn from Matheson's 50-year career ranging from her early vintage gelatin silver prints to her stunning (and mostly unseen) self-portraits and her contemporary large-scale color work. Frank Konhaus, a retired AV System Designer, Director of Cassilhaus, and noted collector of photography, organized Uncommon, and it was originally curated by Lori Vrba and Kent Corley.

Elizabeth Matheson, "Kitty Hawk", North Carolina, archival pigment print

"This is an ambitious exhibition of over 70 photographs by a most talented and brilliant artist," Upstairs Artspace curator Sarah Schroth, Ph.D. said. "We are most grateful to Cassilhaus for helping us bring this special exhibition to Tryon. I first came into contact with Elizabeth's work when I was the Director of the Nasher Museum of Art at Duke University in Durham. Anyone who has an interest in photography will appreciate the work's poetic quality, its elegance and superb compositional sense."

From Hillsborough to Havana, Matheson's ever-evolving, yet singular style rewards the viewer with an uncommon stillness, a sly humor, and a meditation on beauty and order. A native of Hillsborough, Matheson earned her bachelor's degree in English history in 1964 from Sweet Briar College and later studied at the Penland School of Crafts with John Menapace, who provided not only her first formal training but also the confirmation and encouragement she needed to pursue photography seriously.

One-person exhibitions of her work have been held by Hollins University, the Virginia Polytechnic Institute, the North Carolina Museum of Art, Duke University, Western Carolina University, the National Humanities Center, and the Gregg Museum at North Carolina State University. Her work is in the collections of Duke University, the Ackland Museum, the North Carolina Museum of Art, among many others. In 2004, Matheson was awarded the North Carolina Award for Excellence in the Arts, the state's highest civilian honor.

Franklin G. Burroughs-Simeon B. Chapin Art Museum in Myrtle Beach, SC, Features Works by Kristine Mays

The Franklin G. Burroughs-Simeon B. Chapin Art Museum in Myrtle Beach, SC, will present Kristine Mays | A Time for Everything, featuring sculpture you can see right through, from Oct. 3 through Dec. 31, 2023.

Each work in the exhibition is something of a mystery. Within each of the artist's hollow wire sculptures - in either life-sized human form or the shape of a garment - is a surprise: another figure, a small creature of nature, or a message. Each piece invites the viewer to look closer to find the hidden meaning beyond the mere shape of the artwork, as it challenges viewers' perceptions of identity and awareness.

Mays' works are sculpted from thousands of pieces of wire hooked and looped together; yet despite the hardness of her medium, the artist achieves a fluidity to her forms that suggest the softness of a human body, with its fleeting gestures and expressions.

"As an artist I am very aware of the impermanence of life," Mays writes. "With metal wire I have timelessly captured a fleeting moment that I hope will last for decades. My artwork points to the soul and spirit, transporting the viewer into another place. . . I create the outer shell, the exterior of a human being, but provoke you to see what's within."

Mays, a San Francisco native, has been exhibiting her work since 1993 in both solo and group exhibitions. Collectors of her work include Star Wars creator George Lucas as well as many private collectors throughout the United States.

Among some of her more unusual projects were her participation in the Hearts in San Francisco program in 2015, creating a large 400-pound heart for their annual public art installation; as a featured artist in the San Francisco Art Commission's "Art in Storefronts" program, which transformed vacant storefronts and commercial corridors into a destination for contemporary art; and as a collaborator on a large scale public mural in San Francisco, which features large wire feathers placed among the portraits, reflecting the fleeting existence of black jazz musicians.

Mays received her Bachelor Degree in Arts Administration from DePaul University and has occasionally served as a grant review panelist for the San Francisco Arts Commission.

Admission to the Museum is free at all times but donations are welcome.

Rice Museum in Georgetown, SC, Features Works by Natalie Daise

Rice Museum in Georgetown, SC, is presenting Visions of Freedom, a captivating one-woman exhibition by the talented artist and storyteller, Natalie Daise, on view at the Prevost Art Gallery, through Nov. 4, 2023.

The Rice Museum's Prevost Art Gallery is poised to host this extraordinary celebration of creativity and emancipation, inviting patrons to immerse themselves in Natalie Daise's inspiring world of artistry. Visions of Freedom is a poignant homage to Natalie Daise's patron saint, Harriet Tubman, and numerous other remarkable individuals whose indomitable spirit of freedom has left an indelible mark on the world.

This exhibition pays tribute to luminaries such as Miriam Makeba, Nina Simone, Ysaye Barnwell, Janie Hunter, and others, whose unwavering commitment to positive change resonates deeply in the hearts of many.

Daise's artwork is a manifestation of her boundless creativity as a professional storyteller and self-taught artist. Drawing inspiration from the rich tradition of oral storytelling, Daise seamlessly merges various mediums, surfaces, and natural materials to craft visual narratives that transcend the limitations of language. Her unique approach invites viewers to explore the layers of meaning beneath the surface, uncovering the hidden depths that words alone may not convey.

"The process of playing with and discovering what my hands and the materials will do is my spiritual practice and, as such, rises from an intensely personal place," shares Daise. "My family of origin as well as the family I have created with my partner are important to this practice."

Daise's artwork resonates with profound personal experiences, and her use of collard greens as a motif connects her to her roots while also serving as a gateway to exploring the nurturing role of community.

Work by Natalie Daise

Visions of Freedom not only delves into Daise's individual journey but also embraces the rich tapestry of African-American and Gullah Geechee traditions that have nurtured her creativity.

The exhibition reflects on how creative expression can shape communities and foster positive transformation.

Visions of Freedom is a celebration of the human spirit's capacity to break barriers, uplift communities, and pave the way for lasting change. Don't miss the chance to experience Natalie Daise's evocative artistry at the Prevost Art Gallery in the Rice Museum.

Also on view in Georgetown is the sculpture Harriet Tubman: Journey to Freedom, by Wesley Wofford, on view at the John Hayne Rainey Park at 929 Front Street, through Oct. 31, 2023.

Florence County Museum in Florence, SC, Features Works by Joseph Kameen

The Florence County Museum in Florence, SC, is presenting Openings: Joseph Kameen, on view in the Special Exhibit Gallery, through Jan. 28, 2024.

In his recent paintings, South Carolina artist Joseph Kameen investigates how the search for meaning in everyday moments becomes distorted as internal thoughts are projected onto inanimate surroundings, blurring the line between reality and memory. With their strong compositions, intense interplay of colors, and theatrical effects of light and shadow, the paintings' characters, objects, and events take on a dream-like presence that is both familiar and elusive, suggesting meanings that remain slightly out of reach.

Kameen's images occupy a space somewhere between the observed and the observer, achieving a subtle symbolic ambiguity and leaving room for multiple interpretations.

Kameen's work has been exhibited in

New York, London, and Berlin. He received his MFA in painting from Indiana University following a BFA in painting and sculpture from Boston University. He is currently Assistant Professor of Art at the University of South Carolina Aiken.

Craven Arts Council & Gallery in New Bern, NC, will present Our Town, an exhibition featuring the work of Michael von Graffenried, on view in the Bank of the Arts' Main Gallery, from Oct. 13 through Nov. 10, 2023. Receptions will be held on Oct. 13 and Nov. 10, from 5-8pm. There will be a community reception for the outdoor display on Oct. 7, at 11 am.

Our Town will feature Michael von Graffenried's images of the people of New Bern over the last 17 years, starting in 2006 to the present. The exhibition focuses on and highlights the people of New Bern, and their daily lives, struggles, and successes.

Our hope is to create a dialogue between various city wards, communities, and groups, about life in Our Town, including our shared past history and hopes as we move towards the future. This exhibition will be a follow up to von Graffenried's original Our Town exhibition in 2006 for the 300-year anniversary of the city's founding, which received a great deal of international press coverage and started many conversations.

The project will feature two concurrent exhibitions, one in the Main Gallery of Bank of the Arts, and an outdoor display in the Five Points area (1004 Queen Street). The outdoor display will feature large format prints on free standing displays. Duke University in Durham, NC, Offers Works by Lyle Ashton Harris

Duke University in Durham, NC, is presenting Lyle Ashton Harris: Our first and last love, on view at The Nasher Museum of Art, Duke University Central Campus, through Jan. 7, 2024.

Drawing together photographs and installations from both his celebrated and lesser-known series, Lyle Ashton Harris: Our first and last love charts new connections across the artistic practice of Lyle Ashton Harris (b. 1965, Bronx, NY). The exhibition explores Harris's critical examination of identity and self-portraiture while tracing central themes and formal approaches in his work of the last 35 years.

The artist's recently-completed Shadow Works anchor the exhibition. In these meticulous constructions, photographic prints are set within geometric frames of stretched Ghanaian funerary textiles, along with shells, shards of pottery, and cuttings of the artist's own hair. Our first and last love follows the cues of the Shadow Works' collaged and pictured elements - which include earlier artworks and reference materials, personal snapshots, and handwritten notes - to shed light on Harris's layered approach to his practice.

Harris's work engages with broad social and political dialogues while also speaking with revelatory tenderness to his own communities, and to personal struggles, sorrows, and self-illuminations. Groupings centered around singular Shadow Works will expand upon these multiple through lines, including Harris's continued examination of otherness and belonging; the framing and self-presentation of Black and queer individuals; violence as a dark undercurrent of intimacy and desire; tenderness and vulnerability; and notions of legacy - both inherited and self-defined.

Some Exhibits That Are Still On View

Our policy at Carolina Arts is to present a press release about an exhibit only once and then go on, but many major exhibits are on view for months. This is our effort to remind you of some of them.

Work by Steve Flom

Brookgreen Gardens in Murrells Inlet, SC, is presenting The National Sculpture Society's 90th Annual Awards Exhibition, on view in the Rosen Galleries, through Oct. 22, 2023. Brookgreen, home to the largest and most significant collection of American figurative sculpture in the world, will be the premiere location of this exceptional annual exhibition. The National Sculpture Society (NSS) is the country's first organization of professional sculptors and handpicks pieces for this exhibition, presenting the finest in contemporary figurative sculpture by American masters alongside rising stars. "We are thrilled to premiere this annual exhibition on its 90th anniversary as we continue our mission to collect and display the finest American sculpture and continue our longstanding relationship with the NSS since our founders, the Huntingtons, were members and supporters of the organization," says Page Kiniry, President and CEO of Brookgreen. "We hope visitors will take this opportunity to enjoy extraordinary works from some of the country's best contemporary sculptors displayed in this year's exhibition." For further information call the Gardens at 843-235-6000 or visit (www.brookgreen.org).

Work by Clarence Heyward

The Craven Allen Gallery House of Frames in Durham, NC, is presenting TRIPLE THREAT: New Paintings, featuring works by Clarence Heyward, William Paul Thomas, and Charles Edward Williams, curated by Beverly McIver, on view through Oct. 28, 2023. To call

Clarence Heyward, William Paul Thomas and Charles Edward Williams emerging artists would be disingenuous. The three of them have seen tremendous success over the last several years; each has had museum shows, and their works are in significant public and private collections. But they are young and at the forefront of a new generation of Black painters in North Carolina, following in the footsteps of luminaries like Ernie Barnes and Beverly McIver. In fact, McIver, who strives to, as she says, "reach out to help bring others to the table," is guest curator for TRIPLE THREAT. All three painters were featured in Reckoning & Resilience, the Nasher Museum's most recent survey of the best North Carolina artists working today. While their paintings all center on portraiture, each artist approaches their subjects from a different angle. For further information call the gallery at 919/286-4837 or visit (cravenallengallery.com).

The Harvey B. Gantt Center for African-American Arts & Culture, at Levine Center for the Arts in Uptown Charlotte, NC, is presenting Stephanie J. Woods: where the sun shines, on view through Oct. 29, 2023. Organized by the Harvey B. Gantt Center where the sun shines is an immersive dreamworld created by Stephanie J. Woods. The artist transports the viewer between nowhere and everywhere, like a liminal space enveloping the senses. In this world, the sun always shines, the walls whistle, and Venus and Serena Williams play a never-ending tennis match in the sky. Inspired by the yellow walls of her childhood bedroom and the message Woods wrote on her bedroom door, where the sun shines is a new body of work that contains photographs, sculptures, textile works, and an immersive floor and video installation. During Woods' sojourn in Africa attending the prestigious Black Rock Senegal artist residency, founded by renowned artist Kehinde Wiley, she was mesmerized by the colors of the local fashion, and the board games played on

The exhibition will remain on view through Nov. 5, 2023. Fire and Flame: Elizabeth Brim and Shane Fero is an exhibition exploring the decades-long friendship and collaboration between two artists whose careers and acquaintance blossomed at the Penland School of Craft. Elizabeth Brim is a blacksmith, as well as a teacher, living in western North Carolina. She's best known for mastering the dichotomy of feminine imagery and ironwork. Shane Fero is a glassworker using flame to perfect his technique of 'lamp working' to envision intricate, delicate, and ephemeral sculptures. Both are inspired by their environment and both's works are an allegory to their own human experience. For further information visit (www.701cca.org).

Work by Richard Hagerty

Franklin G. Burroughs-Simeon B. Chapin Art Museum in Myrtle Beach, SC, is presenting Richard Hagerty I The Big Uneasy, on view through Dec. 10, 2023. Charleston, SC, surrealist artist Richard Hagerty has been painting his fantastic, visionary worlds for more than five decades. Often based on his dreams and fueled by intense curiosity, Hagerty's paintings explore manifold realms, including mythology, astronomy, anatomy, botany, history, philosophy and world religions. A retired plastic surgeon, Hagerty is formally trained in the rigors and discipline of science, which informs his artistic endeavors. Hagerty's acute attention to detail, unquenchable thirst for knowledge and understanding of both concrete and abstract intellectual concepts and enthusiasm to share his thoughts and findings on canvas are what makes his art so compelling. She has work that has appeared in national and international exhibits as well as national publications. Once and Again: Alterations by Lenz is an exhibit of vintage textiles and objects altered by the artist for contemporary expression. The exhibition showcases new work by North Carolina-based contemporary painter, Damian Stamer. Margulies Collection". Originating as a tribute to the 1962 Bitter Years photography exhibition curated by the illustrious Edward Steichen for the Museum of Modern Art, New York, the current exhibition organized by the Margulies Collection, features photographs by renowned American photographers Dorothea Lange, Walker Evans, Marion Post Wolcott, Jack Delano, and others who launched their careers as documentarians of the Great Depression. Working for the Farm Security Administration, a branch of Roosevelt's New Deal program, these photographers were hired to capture the social landscape of the country, highlighting the challenges facing Americans between 1935 and 1944. As one photographer articulated, "the idea is to show New York to Texans and Texas to New Yorkers." The Martin Z. Margulies Photography Collection includes over 100 vintage photographs from the Farm Security Administration, sixty-five were selected for this exhibition, which also features a series of Polaroids produced by Walker Evans in 1973 and '74 returning to themes found in the earlier works. Gallery 5, Permanent Exhibition - "Miniature Portraits". The first American miniature portrait collection in the United States. Containing more than six hundred objects, the collection spans nearly two hundred years and represents the work of over a hundred artists. Small enough to fit in the palm of the hand, these tiny portraits were treasured remembrances of loved ones in the age before photography. Presented in state-of-the-art display cases, and in viewable storage drawers featured miniatures include works by Mary Roberts, Jeremiah Theus, Henry Benbridge, Charles Wilson Peale, Pierre Henri, Edward Greene Malbone, George Engleheart, and Charles Fraser. Gallery 6, Permanent Exhibition - "20th Century American Regionalism and the Charleston Renaissance". At the turn of the twentieth century, American artists looked to their European counterparts and beyond as they developed identifiably American artistic movements. Two particularly strong influences during this time period were French Impressionism and Japanese woodblock prints. Another prevailing theme during this period was the growing interest in American subject matter. American regionalism and social realism played important roles in the development of art in Charleston, which flourished as a destination for artists, particularly during the years of 1915 to 1945 a period now known as the Charleston Renaissance. Gallery 7, Permanent Exhibition - "Modern and Contemporary". Modern and contemporary art in America encompasses a wide range of styles, subject matter, and media. As a whole, the diversity of modern and contemporary art reflects the rich and varied heritage of our nation and the lowcountry region. Works in this gallery were created over the past forty years by artists who are native to the area, who have worked here, or who have created objects that reflect the complex story of the region. The works are grouped to reflect several themes including the southern landscape, the human figure, abstraction, and the legacy of slavery in America. Visiting Artist Series, Session III: Through Oct. 8 - "Javonte Jenkins and Nathan Durfee". Javonte Jenkins describes his art style as, "very surreal with cartoonist flares expressed to display the personality within each individual piece." This ramifies through a series of powerful imagery, whimsical perspectives and compelling truths that will surely redefine modern art through new, stylized aesthetics. With a background in children's book illustration, Nathan Durfee now uses that aesthetic to convey the nuances and complexity of the human experience. Many of his whimsical characters are faced with tough yet universal decisions, conveying a sense of security in an unsure world to the viewer. Session IV: Oct. 23 - Dec. 3 - "Alice Colin and Elizabeth Williams". Alice Colin's creative process aims to express emotions and thoughts through colors and patterns in a constant search for balance between shapes and shades. Colin's inspiration comes from her travels, countries of adoption and people's facial expressions, ultimately capturing the emotional charge, background and experience a figure can exude in her numerous portraits. Using a range of painting and drawing mediums, Elizabeth Williams combines figurative realism with expressive abstraction on oil-lined linen, panels or paper. In blending traditional portraiture with conceptual storytelling, she connects the "who" with the "why" and establishes how the figure fits into each composition. Ruth and Bill Baker Art Sales Gallery, Through Oct. 29 - "Reuben Bloom," has been exploring fine art photography for more than 12 years. Following a residency program, Bloom's longtime practice of street photography led him to a sculpture and found-object-based studio practice that explores themes, materials and motifs generated by his images. He is a member of the Goodyear Arts Collective in Charlotte, NC., where he maintains a studio. Museum Shop - Now offering the inventory of the Tradd Street Press, reproductions of works by Elizabeth O'Neill Verner among other exhibit related art objects. In this exhibition, La Vaughn Belle seeks to explore the relationship of history, land, and the bodies between them. Through this process, Belle will consider the idea that who we are individually and collectively is a product of historical processes that are often represented in the landscape. Over the last decade, Belle's work has been centered in decolonial art practices that challenge the narratives in colonial archives. With this project, she will weave biography and history to create interventions in historical sites and consider how landscapes and ecosystems are manipulated by those who live within them. Portfolio". Born in Columbia to Greek immigrant parents in 1934, Constantine Manos traveled to Greece in the early 1960s, where he photographed the everyday lives of villagers over a period of three years. The resulting body of work, first published in 1972 as "A Greek Portfolio", solidified the photographer's reputation and quickly earned international recognition. In 1978, he donated 50 of those prints to the Columbia Museum of Art, a selection of which is on view in this exhibition. Manos' account captures the beauty, simplicity, and hardships of rural Greek life with the sensitivity of one with familial ties to that country. In intimate images exploring love, loss, faith, and family, the artist prompts reflection on the nature of human relationships and the connections between land and labor. Oct. 7 - Jan. 21, 2024 - "Lee Alexander McQueen & Ann Ray: Rendez-Vous". McMaster Gallery, room 119, basement level, McMaster Building, 1615 Senate Street, Columbia. Through Oct. 5 - "Beyond Violet," featuring works by Christina Kerns. The exhibit employs lenticular technology (also known as moving pictures, wiggle pictures, or tilt cards) to echo the duplicity of real life or IRL and an online experience. The two frame 'animated' pieces transition as the viewer moves left and right; the viewer sees a clear image that is obscured and then becomes clear again. This transition evokes the idea of metamorphosis, realized only before or after and indiscernible during the action. Oct. 26 - Nov. 30 - "You Look Like the Right Type". Daily, since November 23, 2008, Mark Addison Smith has been listening in on strangers' conversations and drawing their words as black and white, type-forward drawings. He's never missed a day and has over 5,000 drawings in his ongoing archive, appropriately called "You Look Like the Right Type". When clustered together as visual narratives, the individual drawings share grayscale conversations with one another across time, place, age, and gender. Florence View of the exhibit "Kindred Spirit: The Personal Worlds of William H. Johnson (1901-1970), on loan from Morgan State University.

Work by Nathan Durfee - Gibbes Visiting Artists

Florence County Museum, 111 West Cheves Street, across the street from the Francis Marion University Performing Arts Center, Florence. Ongoing - "Kindred Spirit: The Personal Worlds of William H. Johnson". William H. Johnson (1901 - 1970) was a man between worlds: raised in the rural South, but educated in New York; black, but his unknown father was white; American-born, but lived much of his adult life in Europe. This diverse heritage gave Johnson a unique perspective and insight, but at times it was also a difficult shadow which followed him as he traveled the world in search of his true artistic voice. Eventually, after many years away from his hometown of Florence, SC, Johnson returned to the United States. Although living in New York, his art began to focus almost entirely on the lives and experiences of African Americans in the rural South. "My travels taught me that an artist must live and paint in his own environment... This development shall continue for the rest of my life, and it is the painting of my people," said Johnson in 1941. Special Exhibit Gallery, Through Jan. 28, 2024 - "Openings: Joseph Kameen". In his recent paintings, South Carolina artist Joseph Kameen investigates how the search for meaning in everyday moments becomes distorted as internal thoughts are projected onto inanimate surroundings, blurring the line between reality and memory. With their strong compositions, intense interplay of colors, and theatrical effects of light and shadow, the paintings' characters, objects, and events take on a dream-like presence that is both familiar and elusive, suggesting meanings that remain slightly out of reach. His images occupy a space somewhere between the observed and the observer, achieving a subtle symbolic ambiguity and leaving room for multiple interpretations. Kameen's work has been exhibited in New York, London, and Berlin. He received his MFA in painting from Indiana University following a BFA in painting and sculpture from Boston University. He is currently Assistant Professor of Art at the University of South Carolina Aiken.

Choirs singing. Monks chanting. The reading of religious texts. These are religious sounds. But so too are the creaking of church pews and the clanking of pots during the preparation of a communal meal. "Sounds of Religion" is a Smithsonian poster exhibition that explores how rituals and gatherings of religious communities create a complex soundtrack of religions in America that teaches how people behave, how they're different, and how they're alike. "Sounds of Religion" is organized by the Smithsonian Institution Traveling Exhibition Service in cooperation with the American Religious Sounds Project of The Ohio State University and Michigan State University and made possible through the generous support of The Henry Luce Foundation. Through the 12 posters, the exhibition examines what religious sound is, how it can define a community, and where it can be found - from houses of worship and the home to public spaces and in acts of protest. The exhibit also looks at how the sound of religion can be affected by events like COVID-19. Duke Energy Gallery, Extended to Oct. 1 - "Woven Together: Fiber Art within Special Collections". Myrtle Beach / Grand Strand

Work by Richard Hagerty

Franklin G. Burroughs · Simeon B. Chapin Art Museum, 3100 South Ocean Blvd., beside Springmaid Beach, Myrtle Beach. Oct. 3 - Dec. 31 - "Kristine Mays | A Time for Everything". Within each of the artist's hollow wire sculptures -- in either life-sized human form or the shape of a garment -- is a surprise: another figure, a small creature of nature, or a message. Each piece invites the viewer to look closer to find the hidden meaning beyond the mere shape of the artwork, as it challenges viewers' perceptions of identity and awareness. Mays' works are sculpted from thousands of pieces of wire hooked and looped together; yet despite the hardness of her medium, the artist achieves a fluidity to her forms that suggest the softness of a human body, with its fleeting gestures and expressions. Through Dec. 10 - "Richard Hagerty | The Big Uneasy". A reception will be held on Oct. 6, from 5:30-7:30pm and a gallery talk will be offered on Oct. 7, from 11am-12:30pm. Charleston, SC, surrealist artist Richard Hagerty has been painting his fantastic, visionary worlds for more than five decades. Often based on his dreams and fueled by intense curiosity, Hagerty's paintings explore manifold realms, including mythology, astronomy, anatomy, botany, history, philosophy and world religions. A retired plastic surgeon, Hagerty is formally trained in the rigors and discipline of science, which informs his artistic endeavors. His acute attention to detail, unquenchable thirst for knowledge and understanding of both concrete and abstract intellectual concepts and enthusiasm to share his thoughts and findings on canvas are what makes his art so compelling. Through Dec. 31 - "Local Stories Matter: Rediscovering Our Region with the Athenaeum Press". Discover the hidden stories of our region through the lens of The Athenaeum Press at Coastal Carolina University. Over the last ten years, collaborative teams of university students and faculty have worked with a wide variety of local communities in telling stories that enrich our understanding of the South. The topics range from Gullah Geechee spirituals to chicken bog to pirates. Experience the interactive and multimedia storytelling methods of each project, including augmented/virtual reality, musical albums and documentaries. Spartanburg

Throughout downtown Spartanburg's Cultural District, Ongoing - The Creative Crosswalk Project is a public art initiative in which local artists and designers design and paint a series of crosswalk murals, transforming the crosswalks into works of art, on Main Street in Spartanburg, SC. downtown Spartanburg area. The problem is that crosswalks are incredibly easy to overlook, they are rarely visually appealing, and they can even be quite dangerous. In an effort to remedy these issues, Chapman Cultural Center, the City of Spartanburg, and the Spartanburg Area Chamber of Commerce came together to organize the Creative Crosswalk Project. Rosalind Sallenger Richardson Center for the Arts, Wofford College, Spartanburg. Richardson Family Art Museum, Oct. 23 - Dec. 8 - "A GENDER LINE: A Multidisciplinary Show of Female Artists and Writers". A panel discussion and reception will be held on Nov. 9, beginning at 5pm in the Rosalind Sallenger Richardson Center for the Arts, room 112. The quote, "A gender line...helps keep women not on a pedestal, but in a cage," by Ruth Bader Ginsburg, highlights the notion that women are often confined to specific roles and expectations in society. It is a reminder that women have been historically excluded from specific opportunities, particularly when it comes to earning wages. RBG's quote directly relates to Women's Rights, Gender Studies, Feminism, and Female Justice dialogues. However, this powerful statement, seen through an artistic lens, opens endless possibilities to decode, reveal, express, and create meanings within diverse art forms and discussions. Featured visual artists include: Elaine Quave, Freda Sue, Mina Rastgatalab Tabrizi, and Diana Farfan Valente. Featured writers include: Glorya Bayne, Jennifer Oladipo, Glenis Redmond, Jammie Ryan-Huynh, and Hannah Suarez. Ongoing - Featuring the Cerise and Amber Persian Ceiling sculptures created by renowned American sculptor Dale Chihuly. Admission: Free. Hours: Tue, Wed, Fri. & Sat., 1-5pm; Thur., 1-9pm; and closed Sun. & Mon. Contact: call 864/597-4180 or at (www.wofford.edu).

Apex

The Halle Cultural Arts Center, 237 North Salem Street, Apex. Main Gallery, Through Nov. 17 - "Daily Painting Exhibition." A reception will be held on Sept. 8, from 6-8pm. The annual Daily Painting Exhibition started 5 years ago for the artists participating in the class The Happy Habit taught by artist Mónica Linares. Students in this ever-growing class work together in forming the habit of painting every day (or most days!). The participants find this show to be not only a motivation to form the habit of going to their easels, but a reward and a celebration for their effort of painting often...the only way to become better at painting. Unique to this year is that each participant will be exploring the theme LIGHT throughout their series. The size of the pieces is again 8x8" instead of the usual 6x6". This year, a couple of well-known guest artists join the show; inspiring all members to keep painting. On view in display cases, Through Nov. 17 - Featuring works by Michael Schmitz, who lives in North Raleigh with his wife and two young girls. He received his BA in the Fine Arts with a focus in drawing from the University of Dayton in 2005. Additionally, he studied abroad in Florence, Italy for 6 weeks in college. His work is inspired by a wide-range of moments and scenes, each time and place have a unique, outward appearance but also a corresponding, inexpressible, inner essence (yes, even the pile of trash). In the model of Robert Henri, he is not interested in depicting the surface of things — instead, he strives to capture the spirit within each moment and scene. Hours: Mon.-Fri., 9am-6pm & sat., 9am-1pm. Contact: 919/249-1120 or at (www.apexnc.org).

Asheville Art Museum, 2 South Pack Square at Pack Place, Asheville. Through Feb. 5, 2024 - "Beyond the Lens: Photorealist Perspectives on Looking, Seeing, and Painting". Throughout the history of painting from the mid-19th century forward, artists have used an endless variety of approaches to record their world. "Beyond the Lens: Photorealist Perspectives on Looking, Seeing, and Painting" continues this thread, offering an opportunity to explore a singular and still forceful aspect of American art. Photorealism shares many of the approaches of historical and modernist realism, with a twist. The use of the camera as a basic tool for organizing visual information in advance of painterly expression is now quite common, but Photorealists embraced the camera as the focal point in their creative process. "Beyond the Lens" presents key works from the collection of Louis K. and Susan Pear Meisel, bringing together paintings and works on paper dating from the 1970s to the present to focus on this profoundly influential art movement. The exhibition includes work by highly acclaimed formative artists of the movement such as Charles Bell, Robert Bechtle, Tom Blackwell, Richard Estes, Audrey Flack, and Ralph Goings as well as paintings by the successive generations of Photorealist artists Anthony Brunelli, Davis Cone, Bertrand Meniel, Rod Penner, and Raphaella Spence. The Van Winkle Law Firm Gallery, Level 1, Through Jan. 22, 2024 - "Romare Bearden: Ways of Working". Romare Bearden (Charlotte, NC 1911–1988 New York, NY), African American writer and artist, is renowned for his collages. He constantly experimented with various techniques to achieve his artistic goals throughout his career. This exhibition highlights works on paper and explores his most frequently used mediums, including screen-printing, lithography, hand-colored etching, collagraph, monotype, relief print, photomontage, and collage. Explore Asheville Exhibition Hall • Level 3, Through Oct. 23 - "The Art of Food: From the Collections of Jordan D. Schnitzer and His Family Foundation". Food is culture. Whether farm-raised or factory-made, traveling from kitchen to mouth, what one eats is often a means of understanding time, place, and people. "The Art of Food: From the Collections of Jordan D. Schnitzer and His Family Foundation" brings together works from some of the most pre-eminent postwar and contemporary artists who used food as their subject matter. This exhibition explores the many identities of food in daily life: whether a source of pleasure, a reason for gathering, a mass-produced commodity, or a reflection of social ideologies and divisions. "The Art of Food" features works from important postwar artists including Andy Warhol, Robert Rauschenberg, Roy Lichtenstein, David Hockney, John Baldessari, Ed Ruscha, and Jasper Johns, alongside the work of contemporary artists, like Alison Saar, Lorna Simpson, Enrique Chagoya, Rachel Whiteread, and Jenny Holzer, among others. Judith S. Moore Gallery, Through Apr. 15, 2024 - "Western North Carolina Glass," selections from the collection. Western North Carolina is important in the history of American glass art.

Several artists of the Studio Glass Movement came to the region, including its founder Harvey K. Littleton. Begun in 1962 in Wisconsin, it was a student of Littleton's that first came to the area in 1965 and set up a glass studio at the Penland School of Craft in Penland, North Carolina. By 1967, Mark Peiser was the first glass artist resident at the school and taught many notable artists, like Jak Brewer in 1968 and Richard Ritter who came to study in 1971. By 1977, Littleton retired from teaching and moved to nearby Spruce Pine, North Carolina and set up a glass studio at his home. Since that time, glass artists like Ken Carder, Rick and Valerie Beck, Shane Fero, and Yaffa Sikorsky and Jeff Todd—to name only a few—have flocked to the area to reside, collaborate, and teach, making it a significant place for experimentation and education in glass. The next generation of artists like Hayden Wilson and Alex Bernstein continue to create here. Ongoing - The Asheville Art Museum, the hub for 20th- and 21st-century American art in Western North Carolina, has re-opened to the public. Helen M. Post Medley portrait of Anni Albers at BMC

Black Mountain College Museum + Arts Center, 120 College Street, Asheville. Through Jan. 6, 2024 - "Weaving at Black Mountain College: Anni Albers, Trude Guermonprez, and Their Students," is the first exhibition devoted to textile practices at Black Mountain College (BMC). The weaving program was started in 1934 by Anni Albers and lasted until Black Mountain College closed in 1956. Despite Albers's elevated reputation, the persistent treatment of textile practices as women's work or handicraft has often led to the discipline being ignored or underrepresented in previous scholarship and exhibitions about the College; this exhibition brings that work into the spotlight at last. Ongoing - An exhibition space dedicated to exploring the history and legacy of the world's most acclaimed experimental educational community, Black Mountain College. Herbert Young Community Center, 101 Wilkinson Avenue, Cary. Through Oct. 19 - "Isabell Chang: Animals". "Through the rich strokes of oil as well as the feathery blends of watercolor, I hope to capture the emotions of the world around me through painting and depicting various subjects using realism placed in thought-provoking settings. What I wish to convey is the significance of the aura my subjects radiate, something unable to be documented or charted, but rather woven together through the composition as a whole," says Chang. "I specifically enjoy challenging myself to capturing the character of animals, because I feel animals, though unable to speak words, emanate sentiments just as intricate as humans. By capturing these animals in different stances, I hope to show their intention, action, and personality highlighted through not just them as a species, but also through their individual eyes. The eyes are a facet of animals that I long to perfect, capturing, with each brushstroke, the bottomless gush of sentiment held in their silent faces. Playfulness, compassion, curiosity, as well as a heaviness unable to be described by words is something I believe can be truly exemplified and shared from my interpretation to the audience." Hours: Mon.-Fri., 9am-10pm; and Sat., 9am-6pm. Contact: 919/4604965 or (www.townofcary.org).

Page-Walker Arts & History Center, 119 Ambassador Loop, Cary. Through Nov. 4 - "Charles Philip Brooks". The tradition of Tonalist painting is one of intimate and nuisance-filled art. Charles Philip Brooks returns to the roots of Tonalist landscapes with an emotive series of poetic and pastoral subjects including dark moonlit nights, rustic burning sunsets and wild seas. The artist's confident painterly craft is deeply rooted in historic tradition. Through Nov. 4 - "Jamie Hansen: Serendipity". Cary native Jamie Hansen began painting as a child and attended classes at the Cary Arts Center. She studied fine art in the US and Germany and creates large scale watercolor art that is saturated with color and rich with detail. Her current series of work explores stories and connections created through shared musicmaking. Married to a musician, Jamie's art documents arrangements of concerts and rooms full of musical instruments. In her work, shapes meet each other in staccato notes, mingle in triads and overtones, and then decrescendo to soft whispers. The capricious nature of the watercolor medium helps translate the vibrant immediacy of live music into visual art. Through Nov. 4 - "Junhong Ma: Tea and Coffee". The exhibit displays some of her most unique and well-loved tea sets and mugs. Having grown up in China before settling here, Jun has two different cultural backgrounds that start a day with a cup of tea, and / or a cup of coffee. Through her pottery, she creates functional vessels that work for either. Her colorful works bring together these two backgrounds in her own unique way. Hours: Mon.-Thur., 10am-9:30pm; Fri., 10am-5pm; & Sat., 10am-1pm. (It is strongly advised that you call ahead about hours this space will be open.) Contact: 919/460-4963.

She has been simultaneously painting a series of landscapes on both sides of the Mexican border, with the notion that landscapes transcend borders. Her identity and heritage straddle these places, as a half-Mexican. Her propensity for intense color is a by-product of this culture. As a longtime resident of North Carolina, she is also interested in plants such as the prickly pear cactus and yucca that are indigenous to both North Carolina and Mexico. Hours: Mon.-Fri., 8am-5pm. Bechtler Museum of Modern Art, Levine Center for the Arts, 420 South Tryon St., Charlotte. Second Floor Gallery, Through Nov. 26 - "Art of Another Kind: Selections of Art Informel." Art Informel is a radical approach to abstraction that emerged in Europe in the years following World War II. In response to the horrors of the war, many artists rejected what they believed was realism's susceptibility to nationalistic narratives, and sought to develop a universal visual language that communicated freedom, individual expression, and inner states of being. Championing this new artistic tendency, in 1952 the French curator and art critic Michel Tapié organized the groundbreaking exhibition Un Art Autre—or Art of Another Kind—and published an accompanying catalogue, in which he coined the term "Art Informel." Third Floor Gallery, Through Nov. 26 - "Lightness and Weight: Japanese Art from the Collection." This exhibition foregrounds work by Japanese artists in the Bechtler Museum's permanent collection, including Shikō Munakata (1903–1975), Kumi Sugaï (1919–1996), and Tetsuya Yamada (born 1968), all of whom are recognized for their innovative approaches to time-honored Japanese artmaking materials and forms. Employing bold and emotive lines, Munakata is best known for his woodblock prints that merged traditional Japanese art with a visual vocabulary influenced in part by European Post-Impressionism and German Expressionism. Kumi Sugaï likewise looked to both East Asian and Western sources. Fourth Floor Gallery, Through Jan. 21, 2024 - "Teresa Hubbard / Alexander Birchler: Flora." Teresa Hubbard / Alexander Birchler: Flora features the Swiss American duo's multimedia project based on their discoveries about the previously unknown American artist Flora Mayo. Hubbard / Birchler have been working collaboratively since 1990, employing video, sound, photography, and other mediums to explore connections between history, memory, social relationships, and narratives both factual and imagined. Flora and the accompanying work "Bust" (both 2017) spotlight the life of Flora Mayo, who in the 1920s studied alongside Swiss sculptor Alberto Giacometti at the Académie de la Grande Chaumière in Paris, and with whom she had a romantic relationship. Fourth Floor Gallery, Through Jan. 21, 2024 - "Giacometti and the Artists of the Grande Chaumière." Assembled from the Bechtler Museum's permanent collection, this installation is conceived as a pendant to the exhibition Teresa Hubbard / Alexander Birchler: Flora, and will feature work by an international array of artists who studied or taught at the Académie de la Grande Chaumière in Paris during the early 20th century. The famed art school was a gathering place for many avant-garde artists—including Alberto Giacometti and Flora Mayo—who sought to break away from academic conventions and experiment with new forms of expression. This focused exhibition invites viewers to explore a diverse range of work by artists associated with the Grande Chaumière, conveying the influences, dialogues, and creative exchange that took place between them. Ongoing - The Bechtler Museum of Modern Art is named after the family of Andreas Bechtler, a Charlotte resident and native of Switzerland who assembled and inherited a collection of more than 1,400 artworks created by major figures of 20th-century modernism and donated it to the public trust. The Bechtler collection comprises artworks by seminal figures such as Alberto Giacometti, Joan Miro, Jean Tinguely, Max Ernst, Andy Warhol, Alexander Calder, Le Corbusier, Sol LeWitt, Edgar Degas, Nicolas de Stael, Barbara Hepworth and Picasso. Only a handful of the artworks in the Bechtler collection have been on public view in the United States. Admission: Yes. Work by Annie Nashold

Bill and Patty Gorelick Gallery, at Central Piedmont Community College's Cato Campus, Cato III, 8120 Grier Road, Charlotte. Through Dec. 8 - "Stories From Within Annie Nashold". Storytelling is central to my work where images emerge through narrative portraits, abstracted figures, subconscious drawings, and family archives. The beauty of nature, humanity, memory, experience, mystery, color, and dreams inspire me. During the Pandemic, I have spent many hours in the studio experimenting and playing with materials and imagery. By June 2020, I found myself drawing every evening with gel pen and small sketchbook. I begin with no intention when drawing. I don't know whether the subconscious mind is seeping up into the conscious mind or if the conscious mind is seeping down into the subconscious mind, either way I do not question it. The journey involves embracing the mystery of stories that unfold. I look and I respond, I feel and I respond, I wonder and I respond, I don't know and I respond. I just let it all happen as it does. Working in mixed-media I create paintings, drawings and collages. Layering color, drawing, and collage create a tapestry of expressive imagery. Acrylic paint, Oil Pastels, Collage, Graphite, Inks, Pastel Crayons, Charcoal, and Graphite Powder are materials I enjoy playing with. Hand printed and stained rice papers become part of the layering. Through the beauty of art and the complexity of life, my current works explore the strength, courage, joy, dignity, challenge, love, trauma, humor, and compassion that we all share. The stories can connect us in ways we never expected and ways we come to feel as part of ourselves. The viewer brings their own experience to the work as we do in life when we meet each other. As the tale unfolds these images show the ordinary with all its beauty, uniqueness, complexity, magic, and mystery that we all hold within. Bill and Patty Gorelick Gallery, at Central Piedmont Community College's Harper Campus, Harper IV, 315 W. Hebron St., Charlotte. Through Dec. 8 - "Layer and Lines," featuring works by Sudie Rakusin. Rakusin says, "Being an animal activist and feminist, my artwork flows from what moves me and from where I find beauty: women, animals, the earth, color, pattern and light. My art represents the deep connection I feel with these elements. Through my artwork I create a world as I would like it to be, where harmony exists between animal and human, and where nature thrives. My work includes pen and ink drawings, papier-mâché sculptures, abstracts in cold wax and oil, and 3-dimensional oil on canvas paintings featuring women and animals. "Art is where I go for refuge, replenishing, and how I pay homage to what sustains me. This body of work is cold wax and oil on wood panels. The properties of cold wax fascinate me and keep me curious; how the underlying layers inform and alter the layers applied over them, how incising and scraping and glazing make more changes. I know I am wielding the palette knife and mixing the colors, but what happens on the panel is beyond my control. I'm learning how to be fine with the state of 'not knowing'." Through Dec. 31 - "Journey Through Life by Jodi Lynn McNeely". Charlotte artist Jodi Lynn McNeely has a drive to paint something, make something, or fix something. After taking numerous art classes at Central Piedmont Community College and participating in several ceramic workshops, Jodi built a studio and gallery on her property in South Charlotte, Her Industrial Design Bachelors Degree, ceramics education, and free form carvings have emerged as her signature style, creating unique pieces with structural integrity and aesthetic interest. Secluded in his new home during the onset of the pandemic, he sought comfort in his painting, focusing on florals and landscapes. He started working on a series of paintings based on the parks and scenes he and his wife enjoyed during their daily walks in their new surroundings. Painting helped him feel grounded and provided a sense of hope. Newman says, "In this time of uncertainty – emotionally, politically, and physically – it's my hope that others might interpret their own sense of solace and hope for the future with gifts as simple and as powerful as the flowers and landscapes we discover in our own backyards" Hours: open while campus is open, but reservations help us alert our security team to visitors, provide directions to the galleries, and COVID-19 security protocol instructions to the visitors. During her individual conversations with students, drawing on her experience as a Black woman attending predominantly white universities, Beal asked students about their occupation of space: What is your space of comfort on campus? Elizabeth Ross Gallery, Central Piedmont's, Central Campus, Overcash Performing Arts Center, Elizabeth Avenue and Kings Dr., Charlotte. Through Oct. 5 - "Humanity Through Environments by Tuan Mai and Ingrid Swanson". Recent graduates of the Associate in Visual Arts program, Tuan Mai and Ingrid Swanson, bring us an energetic and colorful exhibition, 'Humanity Through Environments.' The exhibition focuses on our environments as human being as in what ways we relate and conform (or not) to those environments. "Every story has a setting. We as humans are creatures whose memories and experiences are so often compelled by our surroundings. The question this body of work asks is, "What are we if not part of something greater?" says Ingrid Swanson. No one stands unaffected by the external forces at work in our lives. To detach yourself from your environment is to lose your humanity. Your environment is your perspective: from seeing life as it is to seeing cities bathed in color. Whether examining a story up close or seeing the bigger context, this series of oil, acrylic, watercolor, and ceramics tells of the interactions between people and spaces.

Each facet of the face, each loose or contained brush mark, each detail informs the viewer of the subject's story. Swanson is a Latina artist, whose keen interest in the innermost parts of people's hearts has led her to pursue fine art. Though it may be through oil, acrylic, watercolor, or clay- bold marks and color are signature in Swanson's work. Raised in Vietnam, Mai came to the United State in 2017 to look for a new chapter in his art career. Mai's paintings are a series of art that try to capture the daily activities of communities. With different mediums such as oil paints, acrylic paints, ink, watercolor, Mai creates story-telling works of art. Hours: Mon.-Thur., 10am-4pm or by appt. Stephanie J. Woods, "Shake EM III", 2022, Afro hair, hair beads, yarn, barrettes, and hand dyed cotton fabric. Archival Ink-Jet Print, 24" X 36" X 2"

Harvey B. Gantt Center for African-American Arts & Culture, Levine Center for the Arts, 551 S. Tryon St., Charlotte. Through Oct. 29 - "Stephanie J. Woods: where the sun shines". Organized by the Harvey B. Gantt Center, "where the sun shines", is an immersive dream-world created by Stephanie J. Woods. The artist transports the viewer between nowhere and everywhere, like a liminal space enveloping the senses. In this world, the sun always shines, the walls whistle, and Venus and Serena Williams play a never-ending tennis match in the sky. Inspired by the yellow walls of her childhood bedroom and the message Woods wrote on her bedroom door, where the sun shines is a new body of work that contains photographs, sculptures, textile works, and an immersive floor and video installation. During Woods' sojourn in Africa attending the prestigious Black Rock Senegal artist residency, founded by renowned artist Kehinde Wiley, she was mesmerized by the colors of the local fashion, and the board games played on the streets which reminded her of playing checkers with her papa. "where the sun shines" honors Woods' memories growing up in Charlotte, NC. Memories of school lunches, acts of adultification, playground games, and fathers encouraging their baby girls to shine. Currently On View, "FuturePresent: Acquisition Highlights from the Permanent Collection". The exhibition from the Permanent Collection examines the Harvey B. Gantt Center's legacy of collecting. Since the organization's inception in 1974, the Gantt Center has primarily built its collection from works gifted to the institution. Work by Rosalie Torres-Weiner

Mint Museum Randolph, 2730 Randolph Road, Charlotte. Through Jan. 21, 2024 - "Walter Scott Lenox & American Belleek". Featuring 80 works from the Mint's permanent collection, as well as other notable public and private collections, this exhibition focuses solely on the earliest decades of American Belleek production and the role Walter Scott Lenox played in its development as an art form. Curated by Brian Gallagher, the Mint's senior curator of decorative arts, The Mint Museum is the exhibition's only venue. In 1857, McBirney and Company in the village of Belleek in County Fermanagh, Northern Ireland, began producing a new type of porcelain renowned for its light, delicately thin, ivory-colored body. Named for the town in which it was created, Belleek porcelain quickly became prized among discerning customers in the British Isles. As its popularity then spread across the Atlantic, several American ceramic manufactories in Trenton, New Jersey, sought to make their own version of Belleek. In 1882, Ott and Brewer became the first to succeed. Art of the Ancient Americas collection on the second floor of the Museum, Through Oct. 31 - "Guiding Winds," an installation by Rosalia Torres-Weiner, curated by Jennifer Sudul Edwards. The installation is part of the "Interventions Series," a new series at the Mint in which contemporary works are placed amongst permanent collection installations to create a critical dialogue between past and present. The history of humanity is a story of movement - groups migrating over land and water, carrying their ancestral practices with them. Traces remain, even when a tribe has moved on or hostile outsiders try to erase those traditions. Stories and symbols integrate, creating cultural strata that create a timeline of all who lived on a land. The maps and explanations throughout museum galleries illustrate this - sometimes overtly, other times subtly. Ongoing - "The Cole Family: A Dynasty of North Carolina Potters". From crocks, jars, and jugs to pitchers, candleholders, and vases, "turning pots" is one of the oldest and richest craft traditions in North Carolina. For more than 200 years, members of the Cole family have been potting in central North Carolina

— Randolph, Moore, Lee, and Montgomery counties. Six generations of Coles, and no fewer than 18 individuals, are represented in The Mint Museum's permanent collection. More than 60 highlights of their wares are included in the installation "The Cole Family: A Dynasty of North Carolina Potters". One reason for its long-term success is that making pottery has so often been a family tradition in the state. Fathers taught the art of forming, glazing, and firing clay objects to their sons, and in later generations also to daughters, who in turn taught their children, and so on through the decades. These family dynasties not only helped to keep the potting craft alive, but ensured continuity in techniques and craftsmanship, as well as introduced artistic innovations in succeeding generations. "The Cole Family: A Dynasty of North Carolina Potters" presents a visual history of "turned pots" and the family that helped turn North Carolina into one of America's centers for handmade, traditional pottery. Bridges and Levine Galleries, Ongoing - "Contemporary British Studio Ceramics: The Grainer Collection". Focused on the collection of Diane and Marc Grainer, this installation is a survey of contemporary British studio ceramics. Comprising functional and sculptural objects made between the 1980s and today, the show features work by artists either born or residing in Great Britain, including established "contemporary classics" like Gordon Baldwin and Rupert Spira, and cutting-edge ceramicists such as Julian Stair and Kate Malone. Several recently-gifted works from the Grainers are included. Alexander, Spangler, and Harris Galleries, Ongoing - "Portals to the Past: British Ceramics 1675 - 1825". The Mint Museum's collection of eighteenth-century British pottery and porcelain is widely respected for its scope and quality. The collection numbers over 2,000 objects and includes important examples of both salt-glazed and dry-bodied stoneware from Staffordshire; tin-glazed earthenware from Bristol, Liverpool, and London; and cream-colored earthenware from Derbyshire, Staffordshire, and Yorkshire. Notable eighteenth-century porcelain factories represented include Chelsea, Bow, and Vauxhall in London, Longton Hall in Staffordshire, Worcester, Bristol, and others. Individual works in the collection are exceptional because of their rarity, craftsmanship, provenance, or as representative examples of particular types or methods of production or decoration. Ongoing - "American Glass". The nineteenth and early twentieth centuries represented a time of extraordinary growth for the American glass industry. Such companies as Boston & Sandwich Glass Company in Sandwich, MA; Steuben Glass Works in Corning, NY; and Libbey Glass Company in Toledo, OH, began operation and soon developed notable reputations for producing fashionable wares that were coveted by many middle- and upper-class consumers. "American Glass" showcases objects by these and other American glass companies, illustrating the variety of forms and styles that prevailed during this period. Glass-manufacturing techniques will be another focus of the exhibition, with representative examples of pressed, cut, blown, and molded glass. Nearly all of the works on view are from The Mint Museum's permanent collection of glass, which is second in size only to the ceramics collection in the museum's Decorative Arts holdings. Ongoing - "Arts of Africa". The African continent is remarkable in its geographic, social, political, and cultural diversity. This impressive diversity is reflected in the visual arts through a variety of media and forms including ceramics, masks, textiles, sculptures, prestige staffs, and shrines. With exceptional loans from private collectors and The Mint Museum's own collection of African Art, the museum is pleased to announce the expansion of its presentation of Arts of Africa, thereby providing visitors a more in-depth, meaningful, and exciting overview of African art. Heritage Gallery, Ongoing - Feature works of art, archival documents, and photographs documenting the growth and evolution of the museum, from its beginnings as the original branch of the US Mint to its founding as an art museum to the present and beyond. Ongoing - "Art for the Millions: WPA Prints" and "Carolina Clay," featuring a display of colorful wares made between 1920 and 1950 as potters from NC adapted their works to a market economy. "Art of the United States," featuring contemporary works from the Mint's permanent collection, including works by Romare Bearden, Maud Gatewood, John Biggers Juan Logan, Tarlton Blackwell, Radcliffe Bailey, Kojo Griffin, and others. "Art in the Americas," featuring paintings, precious metalwork, sculpture, furniture and decorative arts from the 17th through the 19th centuries illustrate the unique culture that emerged from the Spanish colonization of the Americas. Crosland Gallery - Featuring a presentation of portraits with many fascinating images presented. Rankin Gallery - Featuring a presentation of the Romare Bearden Collection, including two "new" Beardens. Delhom Gallery, Ongoing - The European Collection of ceramic

Mint Museum Uptown, Levine Center for the Arts, 500 South Tryon St., Charlotte. Through Feb. 25, 2024 - "The Art of Seating: 200 Years of American Design". The exhibition, drawn from the rich holdings of the Thomas H. and Diane DeMell Jacobsen Ph.D. Foundation provides a rare opportunity to survey the history of American craftsmanship and ingenuity, seen through the lens of seating furniture. Featuring many of the most iconic designs and designers from the past two centuries, "The Art of Seating" encourages visitors to reconsider objects that are a ubiquitous and often overlooked part of our everyday lives, seeing chairs as not just functional objects, but as works of art in their own right. At the same time, the objects in the exhibition also have stories to tell about the history of our country, ranging from the contributions of immigrants to changing tastes in style and aesthetics to new innovations in technology and materials. More than forty examples of seating furniture from the Thomas H. and Diane DeMell Jacobsen Ph.D. Foundation are included in the exhibition and offer a stylistic journey from the early 1800s to the twenty-first century. Through Oct. 1 - "The Vault," curated by Jessica Gaynelle Moss, will open at the Mint Museum Uptown early July 2023. This exhibition will explore some of the distinctly different approaches and philosophies of art collecting by prominent Charlotte-based collectors Judy and Patrick Diamond, Nina and James Jackson, Christy and Quincy Lee, and Cheryse and Christopher Terry. This dynamic group will present a range of collector theory, methodology and objects made by Black artists from their private collections. Visitors will be able to explore vintage photography, original paintings, prints, sculptures, furniture, vinyl records, and other culturally specific ephemera. The Vault illustrates the significant responsibility and privilege that comes with being a collector or custodian of Black art. In 2018, the National Art Services Executive at U.S. Trust, Bank of America Private Wealth Management, Evan Beard, published an article called "The Four Types of Art Collectors" on Artsy, the world's largest online art marketplace. In the article, Beard categorized all art collectors into four general groups: The Connoisseurs, The Enterprising Collector, The Trophy Hunter, and The Aesthete. The four Charlotte-based collectors featured in "The Vault" have distinctly different approaches and philosophies of art collecting that mirror this framework. Craft + Design Galleries, Ongoing - "Craft in the Laboratory: The Science of Making Things," is the first installation in the Southeast to explore how craft artists and designers use science and math concepts when creating works of art. Presented by Müller Corporation, Craft in the Laboratory also celebrates a reinstallation of the Mint's Craft + Design Galleries—the first since 2010. Co-curated by the Mint's Senior Curator of Craft, Design, and Fashion Annie Carlano and Assistant Curator for Craft, Design, and Fashion Rebecca Elliot, "Craft in the Laboratory" includes 100 works from the Mint's collection that are made from precious metals, wood, steel, polymers, and even agricultural waste, that emphasize the preciseness of science used to craft works of art. Made by nationally and internationally renowned artists, the objects are organized by material and subject throughout the galleries. Now - The Mint Museum's new four-story installation "Foragers" offers a transcendent experience while celebrating the tradition of women as makers and providers. Unlike anything ever seen at The Mint Museum before, Brooklyn-based artist Summer Wheat's "Foragers" is a monumental piece of public work of art spanning 96 windows, four stories, and 3,720 square feet at Mint Museum Uptown's Robert Haywood Morrison Atrium. The myriad of vibrant panels that give the illusion of stained glass and celebrates the tradition of women as makers and providers. "Foragers" is part of a larger exhibition "In Vivid Color," which brings together four innovative contemporary artists—Wheat, Gisela Colon, Spencer Finch, and Jennifer Steinkamp—who create works celebrating the power of color and its ability to permeate the space around us. Their work is juxtaposed with a selection of paintings and works on paper, drawn primarily from The Mint Museum's permanent collection, which showcase artists' more traditional exploration of color. Ongoing - The Mint Museum Uptown houses the world renowned collections of the Mint Museum of Craft + Design, as well as the American Art and Contemporary Art collections and selected works from the European Art collection. The building also includes a café, a Family Gallery, painting and ceramics studios, classrooms, a 240-seat auditorium, a Special Events Pavilion with outdoor terrace, and an expanded Museum Shop specializing in crafts of the Carolinas. Drawing together photographs and installations from both his celebrated and lesser-known series, "Lyle Ashton Harris: Our first and last love" charts new connections across the artistic practice of Lyle Ashton Harris (b. 1965, Bronx, NY). The exhibition explores Harris's critical examination of identity and self-portraiture while tracing central themes and formal approaches in his work of the last 35 years. The artist's recently-completed "Shadow Works" anchor the exhibition. In these meticulous constructions, photographic prints are set within geometric frames of stretched Ghanaian funerary textiles, along with shells, shards of pottery, and cuttings of the artist's own hair. Our first and last love follows the cues of the "Shadow Works" collaged and pictured elements - which include earlier artworks and reference materials, personal snapshots, and handwritten notes - to shed light on Harris's layered approach to his practice. Through Feb. 18, 2024 - "Love & Anarchy". On the surface, love and anarchy may seem like unrelated or even conflicting notions. Love is synonymous with care, compassion, and affection, while anarchy is generally accepted as an absence of authority, a state of disorder, or an ungovernable condition. These concepts, more than tangentially related, are often intertwined and even sometimes mutually dependent. Indeed, moments of disarray and frustration are intrinsic to love, while love sometimes emerges out of disorder and chaos. Drawn from the Nasher Museum's extensive historical and contemporary collections, "Love & Anarchy" demonstrates some of the ways in which these two concepts have inspired artists, visually and conceptually, over millennia. Love has been a subject in art for eternity. In antiquity, Aphrodite, goddess of beauty and love, and her offspring, Eros, repeatedly appeared in painting, sculpture, and pottery. From an ancient Greek depiction of the goddess to a 12th century sculpture of the Virgin enthroned to Marc Quinn's 21st century rendering of animal carcasses in Mother and Child, Aphrodite's image resonates across eons. Contemporary depictions of love reveal recognizable poses, gestures, or touch as in Zanele Muholi's photograph, "Katlego Mashiloane" and Nosipho Lavuta, "Ext. 2, Lakeside, Johannesburg". Ongoing - The Collection Galleries feature rotating installations of the Nasher Museum's extensive holdings of historical art. Eight galleries, as well as the entrance to Wilson Pavilion, are dedicated to the museum's strengths, which represent a brief history of human creativity from different times and parts of the world. Just beyond the entrance, visitors will find the Incubator, a flexible space for rotating student- and faculty-curated exhibitions. Visitors are invited to return again and again to The Collection Galleries, where Nasher curators continue to refresh the galleries with gems from the collection. The museum's contemporary collection is showcased through rotating exhibitions within a separate pavilion. Works from the contemporary collection create new conversations and connections among historical works in The Collection Galleries. A breakthrough work by New York artist Fred Wilson from 1990, Colonial Collection, anchors the Arts of Africa Gallery. A painting by Kehinde Wiley is on view in the European Art Gallery. Ongoing - Nasher Museum Café and Museum Shop. Admission: Yes, but free to Durham residents, courtesy of "The Herald-Sun" newspaper. Hours: Tue.-Sat., 10am-5pm; Thur. till 9pm; & Sun., noon-5pm. Contact: 919/684-5135 or at (www.nasher.duke.edu).

Weatherspoon Art Museum, University of North Carolina - Greensboro, Cone Building, Tate and Spring Garden Streets, Greensboro. Through Dec. 9 - "A Golden Age: Original Animation Art from the Walt Disney Studios, 1937-42". One hundred years ago this fall, on October 16, 1923, two brothers named Walt and Roy Disney opened a modest animation studio in Hollywood, California. Just fourteen years later, in 1937, they amazed their audiences with the technological triumph of the world's first full-length cel animated film: "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs". As one writer for the Los Angeles Times noted, "Snow White will twice amaze you. Once when you see it and hear it and again when it suddenly comes over you that what you saw and heard was 250,000 handmade drawings photographed one frame at a time." In fact, it is estimated that another 750,000 drawings and sketches were produced by more than 500 Disney artists during production of the film. From concept paintings to storyboards, character studies to master backgrounds, every element of the movie was crafted by hand. 2nd Floor: The Bob & Lissa Shelley McDowell Gallery, Through Apr. 6, 2024 - "Art on Paper 2023: The 47th Exhibition". The Weatherspoon is pleased to announce the 47th presentation of "Art on Paper". A time-honored museum tradition, the exhibition features the work of artists who demonstrate the breadth of ways in which one can deploy the humble medium of paper to extraordinary ends. From layering colorful strips as one might on a piñata, to precisely cutting through an elongated page until its image appears as if made by lace, to densely coating giant sheets with shellac and walnut ink until they appear as weighty as stone, these artists harness the seemingly infinite ability of paper to take on myriad forms. Simultaneously, they use those forms to explore a rich array of topics—from the links and tensions between humans and the natural environment, to the beauty found in the often overlooked materials of our daily lives, to the complexity of heritage tracked across centuries of global migrations. 1st Floor: Louise D. and Herbert S. Falk, Sr. Gallery and Sculpture Courtyard, 2nd Floor: The Gregory D. Ivy Gallery, Weatherspoon Guild Gallery, and Gallery 6, Through Spring 2024 - "Making Room: Familiar Art, New Stories". How might the Weatherspoon better engage with museum participants to share fuller and more inclusive stories of American art? This question sparked an eighteen-month-long curatorial and programming project starting in January 2022. We've been listening to people as they share what matters to them in the museum, and we've created this installation of the museum's art collection based on what we learned. "Making Room: Familiar Art, New Stories" presents 43 artworks (see cover for a few selections) from the Weatherspoon's collection of more than 6,500. Each was chosen in response to what more than 4,000 community members told us they care about. These visitor responses—which ranged from poems to doodles to personal statements—were gathered in multiple ways. Within the Inquiry Hubs, for example, the visitor engagement team coordinated pop-up gallery performances and facilitated collection-based inquiry and play. Weather-spoon Atrium Mural, Ongoing - "Pause and Breathe, We Got This," a mural by Sheena Rose. A homecoming is in the works. The Weatherspoon is excited to announce its commission of a major new artwork by artist Sheena Rose, MFA '16. A multidisciplinary artist working in animation, drawing, painting, and performance, Rose's vibrant and energetic work is at once anchored in her Caribbean heritage and expansive in its exploration of culture and human experience. Lobbies - Featuring works of art complementing current gallery exhibitions which are rotated in the atrium and public areas throughout both floors of the gallery. Tom Otterness' site-specific work, "The Frieze" is permanently installed in the atrium. Sculpture Courtyard - Featuring selections of American sculpture from 1900 to the present from the Weatherspoon Collection and on loan works from contemporary artists. Admission: Free. Hours: Tue.-Wed. & Fri.-Sat., from 10am-5pm and Thur., 10am-8pm. Contact: 336/334-5770 or at (http://weatherspoon.uncg.edu/).

Early, as an aspiring two-dimensional artist, deeply rooted in formalism, Lance attended Florida State University, where he met Charles Hook. Hook changed Lance's perception of art and sculpture. Hook held the position that all "Sculpture is real, all painting and photography, no matter how realistic is abstract. Two-dimensional work always requires the viewer to imagine the third dimension." Vickery is currently an Assistant Professor at the University of North Florida and President of the International Conference for Contemporary Cast Iron Art [ICCCIA]. Hours: 24/7. Work by Phinthone Senesombath

Hickory Museum of Art, Arts and Science Center, 243 Third Avenue NE, Hickory. Coe Gallery, Through Nov. 26 - "Ben Venom: BANG YOUR HEAD." A reception will be held on Aug. 12, from 10am-4pm. Working with repurposed materials to create textile-based works, some spanning 12 feet in length, Ben Venom contrasts the counterculture components of gangs, punk/metal music with the comforts of domesticity. This collision of traditional quilting techniques with elements tied to the fringes of society re-envisions the story of the material through a softer lens. Venom sources his material (heavy metal band/pop culture t-shirts, bandanas, denim) from donations from friends, family and the public. The reclaimed fabrics contain a multitude of personal histories and everyone's unexplained stain, tear, or rip is included. These salvaged pieces are sewn into a larger narrative and become a part of a collective history within the work. Shuford Gallery, Through Nov. 26 - "Ping's Studio". Mount Airy

View of the exhibit from Piedmont Craftsmen's 60 Years of Fine Crafts Part 1

Mount Airy Museum of Regional History, 301 North Main Street, Mount Airy. Through Oct. 27 - "60 Years of Fine Craft Part I: (1963-1993)," is a collection of work that spans the founding of Piedmont Craftsmen in 1963 through 1993. These formative years brought a variety of ideas and styles to the art of fine craft. The exhibit will run through Oct. 27 with part 2 coming in August of 2024 featuring artist members from 1994 to the present. Ongoing - Ours is an all American story - typical of how communities grew up all across our great nation. While our story takes place in the back country of northwestern North Carolina at the foot of the Blue Ridge Mountains, it is likely to bear many similarities to the development of crossroads, towns, and cities throughout America. It had taken little more than 100 years for the corridors along the coastline of this still-new continent to overflow. As tensions grew and conflicts flared, the pioneer spirit set in. Families literally packed up everything they owned and headed into the unknown-searching for the "promised land." Admission: Yes. Hours: Mon.-Sat., 10am-5pm & Sun., 1-4pm. Gregg Museum of Art & Design, The Historic Chancellor's Residence, NC State University, located at 1903 Hillsborough Street, Raleigh. Through Apr. 13, 2024 - "Leading by Design: Celebrating 75 Years of the College of Design". NC State's School (now College) of Design became a reality in September 1948, and rapidly gained a reputation as one of the top design schools in the nation. The most progressive school of architecture and allied arts in the South, it served as a hub of modernist creativity for the entire region and greatly influenced the landscape and architecture found throughout the Triangle Area today. "Leading by Design" celebrates the design school's legacy by showcasing artworks from the Gregg Museum's permanent collection created by professors and instructors associated with it in its formative years along with an audiovisual element that marks its ongoing impact in the 21st century. Adams and Woodson Galleries, Through Oct. 7 - "This is Not: Aldwyth in Retrospect," curated by Mark Sloan. Now in her mid-eighties, the artist Aldwyth has lived and worked alone in an octagonal house overlooking a salt marsh on one of South Carolina's sea islands since 1980. For most of her adult life she has maintained her seclusion from the larger art world while utilizing the history of art and ideas as a catalyst for complex found-object sculptures and increasingly epic-scaled collages that often recall medieval manuscripts writ large. This retrospective spans nearly seventy years of Aldwyth's work, beginning with photography and moving through experimental painting, assemblage, and collage while touching on personal themes and fascinations that have remained remarkably consistent throughout her career. A tireless innovator, Aldwyth's self-imposed rules both limited and liberated her, allowing her work to be self-contained and self-referential. Each piece is an illustration of the description that defines it, and vice-versa. Ongoing - "Selections from the Collections". Image of a beige quilt with a skeleton riding a wolf holding an American flag. The quilt is made out of old t-shirts. Drawing from the Gregg Museum's collections of over 54,000 objects, Selections from the Collections displays a sampling of the many different kinds of pieces in its holdings. Though objects in the exhibition will rotate from time to time to facilitate their preservation and so that different artists and kinds of objects can be exhibited, the same general themes, materials, and variety of work will remain a part of this ongoing exhibition. For many years, Gregg audiences have been treated to wide ranging but relatively short-term exhibitions that explore topics or present artists' works for a matter of months, and then get changed out and replaced by entirely new shows. While this will continue, most visitors have departed without realizing that the Gregg staff also maintains vast collections used for teaching, research, supporting student projects, and, on occasion, as source material for the exhibitions in the public galleries. The semi-permanent Selections from the Collections exhibition in the historic Residence seeks to remedy that. This new rotating installation will ensure that there will always be fascinating things to see and share at the Gregg! Historic Residence, Ongoing - One of NC State University's most historic buildings is now the permanent home of the Gregg Museum of Art & Design. The Historic Chancellor's Residence, located at 1903 Hillsborough Street, along with a 15,000 sq. ft. addition, increases the museum's visibility while significantly adding to its exhibition and programming space. Hours: Tue.-Sat., 10am-5pm. The Gregg does ask that larger groups (15+) call ahead at (919) 515-3503, to avoid crowding in the galleries. Contact: Zoe Starling, Curator of Education at 919/513-7244 or at (<https://gregg.arts.ncsu.edu/>).

Kiara Gantt, "Fixation", 2022, oil and acrylic paint pens on canvas, 18 x 24 in., Courtesy of the artist.

North Carolina Museum of Art, 2110 Blue Ridge Road, Raleigh. Through Oct. 23 - "Teens, Inspired: Multifaceted". How do you show up in the world? What part of your identity do you share with your peers, your teachers, your family? Teen artists were asked to reflect on how their personalities manifest in different spaces and with varied social groups in order to create a work of art that likewise drew inspiration from multiple works in the People's Collection at the NCMA. East Building, Level B, Photography Gallery 2 (Allen G. Thomas Jr. Gallery), Through Jan. 28, 2024 - "The Surrealist Impulse". The early 20th-century movement surrealism was groundbreaking for its time. Developed in response to the travesty of World War I, the art and literary phenomenon invigorated artists and thinkers to explore dreams, the irrational and uncanny, and the poetic in their works. These principles reverberate in the 21st century, where surrealism remains a chief inspiration. In this exhibition artworks are brought together to illustrate a surrealist impulse that exists in contemporary art. Works like Carolyn Janssen's large-scale ~*(G.O.E.D.)~ depict fantastical worlds that seem plucked from the chasms of the inner psyche. The black-and-white photographs of Kristina Rogers adopt techniques of cropping and layering to blur reality and subtly serve as societal critiques. From these specific qualities and others, the artworks on view exhibit surrealist tendencies and demonstrate how many contemporary artists revel - whether discreetly or not - in the movement's legacy. East Build- ing, Level B, Photography Gallery 1 (Julian T. Baker Jr. Gallery), Through Jan. 28, 2024 - "Luis Rey Velasco". Luis Rey Velasco (b. 1969) creates evocative photographs that capture labor histories, cultural traditions, and everyday people. He came of age in the San Joaquin Valley, a region of California where the history of Latinx farm labor is intrinsic to its identity. Mexican migrant workers arrived in the 1940s due to a set of agreements between the United States and Mexico. The program ended in 1964, but immigration to the region continued. Immersed in this history, Velasco moved to North Carolina in 1999 to photograph children of migrant farm workers. Featured in this exhibition are a selection of photographs Velasco executed between 1998 and 2005, many portraying members of farm worker communities in California and North Carolina. These compelling images emphasize his longtime focus on communities, histories, and regions that are largely hidden yet integral to the American economy. Ongoing - "Break the Mold: New Takes on Traditional Art Making". The exhibit showcases contemporary artists who use traditional modes of art making and crafting to tackle timely subject matter. Innovative takes on embroidery, ceramics, quilting, furniture, interior design, and fashion accessories serve to explore diverse topics such as gender assumptions and inequalities, prison reform, racial justice, memory, and loss, as well as how objects transmit and transform social and cultural history. This show features 25 contemporary artists, including Sanford Biggers, Elizabeth Brim, Maria Britton, Julie Cockburn, Rodney McMillan, Rachel Meginnes, Katy Mixon, Gabriel de la Mora, Yasumasa Morimura, Thomas Schmidt, Shinique Smith, and Do Ho Suh, whose artworks are displayed alongside some of their historical predecessors. Ongoing - Featuring 10 additional sculptures by the celebrated French artist Rodin on loan from Iris Cantor's private collection. Ongoing - "John James Audubon's The Birds of America". The state has owned this treasured volume since 1848, but it has never been exhibited. Ongoing - The North Carolina Museum of Art has an outstanding permanent collection of more than 5,000 objects spanning antiquity to the present day. On the occasion of the expansion, the Museum has acquired more than 100 new works of art. Representing commissions, gifts, and purchases, the new works encompass important and diverse examples of historic and contemporary art from around the world, and will be installed in the Museum's new building and the surrounding landscape. Work by Nico Amortegul

Louise Wells Cameron Art Museum, @ intersection of Independence Blvd. & South 17th Street, Wilmington. Through Oct. 8 - "Love," a new exhibition that examines this sometimes intense, often elusive emotion. Through contemporary art, "Love" explores, celebrates, and looks deeply at these various aspects of love and connects us with our shared humanity. Love is an adaptation of the 2022 exhibition, "What Is Left Unspoken, Love" at the High Museum of Art, Atlanta. In the summer of 2022, then Executive Director Anne Brennan and Director of Collections and Exhibitions Robert Unchester visited the exhibition What Is Left Unspoken, Love at the invitation of Curator Michael Rooks at the High Museum of Art. Inspired by this thought-provoking exhibition, the curatorial team decided to work with the High Museum of Art to create an adapted version of "What Is Left Unspoken, Love" at CAM. Sharing this exhibition, with the way it embraces the complexity and nuance of what it is to love, felt particularly powerful at this moment in time when the world can be so fractured and divided. "Love" is an exhibition to bring us together and to remind us of our shared humanity. "Love" includes work by Ghada Amer, Thomas Barger, Susanna Coffey, Alanna Fields, Andrea Galvani, Jeffrey Gibson, Felix Gonzalez-Torres, Fritz Huber, Rashid Johnson, Jana Vander Lee, Felicita Felli Maynard, William Selig, Dixon Stetler, Lien Truong, Michele Tejuola Turner, jina valentine, and Akram Zaatar. Through Jan. 14, 2024 - "Lugar de Encuentros/Place of Encounters," featuring works by Nico Amortegul, Cornelio Campos, Rodrigo Dorfman, Mario Marzan, Renzo Ortega, and Rosalia Torres-Weiner. A conversation with Rosalia Torres-Weiner will be offered on May 11, at 7pm (CAM Members $15 / Not-yet Members: $25). "Lugar de Encuentros/Place of Encounters," is a new and important exhibition celebrating the work of six LatinX North Carolina based artists. North Carolina is home to a rich diversity of voices, and this is reflected in its community of Latin American artists. Work from "Place of Encounters / Lugar de Encuentros" often straddles two worlds, reflecting both birthplace and chosen home, exploring both tension and harmony in the relationship between the two. From film to installation art to paintings to photography, this exhibition delves into the variety of migrant experiences, offering a space for connection, a chance to encounter another's experience through art. The LatinX community in North Carolina has swelled from 1.2% in 1990 to 10.7% of the total population in 2020, reshaping the demography, economy, and culture of the state. Reflecting and celebrating community lies at the very heart of Cameron Art Museum's mission, making "Lugar de Encuentros/Place of Encounters" a necessary and important exhibition for Wilmington, the state, and the entire Nuevo South. Through Nov. 12 - "Traer a Luz/Bring to Light". The exhibit features photography from brother and sister Dayana and Diego Camposeco. "Traer a Luz/Bring to Light" explores the bonds of trust - between sister and brother, photographer and subject, family and community as well as light and darkness, life and death, work, and culture within the context of southern Latinx identity. Nov. 10 - Mar. 31, 2024 - "Monument," a new exhibition featuring work by nationally and internationally renowned artists Sonya Clark, Willie Cole, Stephen Hayes, Juan Logan, Alison Saar, Augustus Saint-Gaudens, and Kara Walker. The exhibition, received funding from the National Endowment for the Arts. "Monument" takes inspiration from Boundless", the public sculpture on Cameron Art Museum's grounds by Stephen Hayes honoring the United States Colored Troops (USCT) and their fight for freedom. Through their work, artists Sonya Clark, Willie Cole, Stephen Hayes, Juan Logan, Alison Saar, Augustus Saint-Gaudens, Kara Walker, and others create a dialogue acknowledging, questioning, and confronting the idea of commemoration in the built environment in the United States. Exhibition includes loans from Nasher Museum of Art at Duke University, Saint-Gaudens National Historical Park and the collection of the Cameron Art Museum. Ongoing - Cameron Art Museum presents the only sculpture park in the country created to honor the United States Colored Troops and their fight for freedom. The opening of PNC USCT Park marks the one-year anniversary of the unveiling of Boundless, the public sculpture by artist Stephen Hayes that commemorates the United States Colored Troops and the Battle of Forks Road. This park creates a gathering space for the more than 60,000 visitors from across the country who come to CAM each year and the 8,000 school children who visit the museum on field trips. humanity, survival, and triumph. But before her, numerous Black lives impacted and intersected with the story of Reynolda. Southeastern Center for Contemporary Art, 750 Marguerite Drive, Winston-Salem. Main Gallery, Through Oct. 15 - "Kukuli Velarde: CORPUS," featuring ceramics and fabric works which explore Colonialism, Cultural Identity, Aesthetics, and the Performance of Self. "CORPUS" is comprised of ceramic and fabric works that encourage reflection on the meaning of survival in the face of colonialism. Fifteen ceramic sculptures, each with matching tapestries, will be presented in a symbolic representation of the annual Corpus Christi festival in Cusco, Peru. The sculptures reference indigenous pre-Columbian forms and iconographies in a visual representation of syncretic aesthetic, cultural, and religious traditions. "CORPUS" engages with and confronts Peru's Spanish colonial past, asserting that pre-Columbian sacred entities and the worldview they inhabit were not vanquished by Spanish conquerors, but instead cleverly blended with their Catholic counterparts, ensuring their survival. Potter Gallery, Through Dec. 31 - "If These Walls Could Talk," offers stylized murals which imagine the possibilities for community healing and futurisms. It's an exhibition of site-specific mural installations by William Downs, Neka King, and Raj Bunnag. For centuries, murals served as visual representations of complex social and political commentary in accessible spaces. Creatives placed their work on public structures, in civic centers, among other prominent areas, to communicate relevant critiques of everyday life. This documentation of contemporary issues connected individual experiences across race, gender, and religion, providing a tangible record of shared existence. The exhibit upholds the relationship between mural art and public institutions with site-specific works by Durham, NC-based artist Raj Bunnag and Atlanta, GA-based artists William Downs and Neka King. Each of these artists engages graphic techniques that range from line drawing to printmaking, paralleling traditional mural applications that require affixing materials directly onto a wall. Ongoing - Founded in 1956, the Southeastern Center for Contemporary Art offers a front-row seat to the art of our time. Painter Bill Killebrew and Sculptor Ellie Richards each employ their distinct artistic styles to reference commonplace objects and moments found in natural environments and domestic spaces. Ellie primarily creates her sculptures by carving with a bandsaw, resulting in fabricated works that feel familiar yet elevated, such as; manipulated brooms, benches, lamps, and sculptural tableaux. Additionally, Bill anchors his paintings with unexpected color and light, using gestural brushstrokes to vividly capture the portrayal of people, spaces, and objects found within daily life. Side by side, these artists elevate the ordinary and familiar through their signature approaches. Small Format Gallery, Through Oct. 25 - "Eleanor Anderson: Ciphers". Multi-disciplinary artist Eleanor Anderson creatively explores world-making through the process of play and material deviation. In her latest body of work, Eleanor uses craft traditions as a flexible constraint by experimenting with bold colors and graphic patterns to discover new visual possibilities for form and surface design. This spirited practice delves into techniques such as embroidery, beading, weaving, applique, and stitching; resulting in vibrantly textured 2D works. Showcase Gallery, Through Oct. 25 - "Daniel Robbins: Hourglass". Robbins elegantly paints a variety of images — painterly landscapes, still life compositions, and interiors with figurative elements. Burk Uzzle Studio, 106 Douglas Street E, Wilson. Ongoing - Burk Uzzle's career, like his pictures, is a nuanced composition blending American culture, individual psyches of particular places and people, and an atypical way of seeing ourselves, our values, and our community. Always respectful yet locating the poignant or quirky, the history of his narrative belongs to all of us. Initially grounded in documentary photography when he was the youngest photographer hired by "LIFE magazine" at age 23, his work grew into a combination of split-second impressions reflecting the human condition during his tenure as a member of the prestigious international Magnum cooperative founded by one of his mentors Henri Cartier-Bresson. His archive spans almost six decades. His current work rests deep in photographic appreciation of the quiet, strong, and eloquent beauty he discovers in America's small towns and its people. It is along small back roads, limned with feelings and a surety of surprise for the heart wide open, that continue to support his understanding of how America keeps its personality out on a limb. Uzzle's current bodies of work (some of which are African-American) are artful and constructed reflections of his subjects. His hope is for a graphic presentation of something universal within the particular, and all the better when involving a gentle chuckle and knowing smile. He is represented by SOCO Gallery in Charlotte, NC and Tracy Morgan Gallery in Asheville, NC. Hours: by appt. Contact: 252/363-1812 or e-mail to (burk@burkuzzle.com).
