into late, world-renowned artist Dorothy Gillespie's creative process. Known for her site-specific aluminum sculptures like Thalian Hall's 40-foot Colorfall, New Elements Gallery is now showing Gillespie's "Rhapsody Series"; six, never before exhibited, pastel sketches. Gillespie explained how integral such sketches on paper are to her art-making, "Without paper, I would never have realized or produced the metal sculptures I do today." Gillespie's intimate pastels provide a foundation for her larger than life works. An incredibly prolific artist and a trail blazer for women in the arts, Gillespie is an inspiring talent. Through June 20 - "Illumination," features the work of North Carolinian painter Catherine C. Martin. Martin approaches traditional subject matters, such as landscape and architecture, with unconventional techniques.
